Russia, Wooing East German Support, Grants Concessions

Soviet Union Will End Reparations, Free Some POWs

MOSCOW, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Soviet Union has granted Communist East Germany seven major economic and political concessions, including an end to reparations after Jan. 1, release of certain German war prisoners and substantial aid to the Soviet zone's economy.

These were announced today at the end of 48 hours of discussions here between top Soviet leaders, including Premier Georgi Malenkov, and an East German delegation led by Premier Otto Grotewohl.

The text of a joint communique, signed by Malenkov and Grotewohl, was carried in Pravda, Izvestia and other Moscow newspapers.

Western observers viewed the new Moscow-East Berlin policy, disclosed just two weeks before West Germany holds a general election, as aimed at building up East German regime to equal footing with other Communist governments with which Russia has close relations.

Expression Of Soviet Confidence

These observers expressed the belief that the East Germans' visit to the Russian capital and a recent Soviet note to the Western Powers urging an East-West conference on a possible all-German peace treaty were designed as a renewed expression of Russia's confidence in the East German Red regime. The Western sources took this view despite the fact that continuing difficulties in East Germany have been reported since the June 17 riots, which the Russians blamed on "American provocation."

The major concessions disclosed in the communique are:

1. Relations between East Germany and Russia will be placed on a friendly basis, including raising the diplomatic representation in their respective capitals to embassies.

2. Enterprises run by Soviet authorities in East Germany will be returned to the East German economy.

Cost Of Occupation Cut

3. Reduction of East Germany's share in Soviet occupation costs to the point at which it will not exceed 5 per cent of total East German revenues. (Western observers regard this figure as much too low to support the Soviet army deployed between the Elbe and Oder, estimated at 300,000 men, and consider Russia is shouldering substantial part of the costs.)

4. Russian agreement to take certain measures to release "German prisoners of war sentenced for crimes committed during the war." Excepted from this release will be those prisoners "who committed particularly wicked crimes against humanity."

5. Release of East Germany from paying to Russia debts incurred for external occupation costs since 1945 and also from paying back to the Soviet Union debts incurred during the postwar years.

6. East German reparations payments to Russia will stop after next Jan. 1. The communique said the reparations still due amount to $2,537,000,000 at the 1938 level.

MURDER VICTIM — Mrs. Juliet Staunton Clark (above), 59, widow of Walter E. Clark, owner - publisher of The Charleston (W.Va.) Daily Mail, was found bludgeoned to death at her home in the fashionable South Hills section of Charleston. No motive has been established for the sensational killing.

Bit Of Oak Wood Clue To Woman's Brutal Slaying

CHARLESTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—A varnished bit of oak wood was projected today as the most promising clue to the brutal, baffling slaying of socially prominent Mrs. Walter E. Clark.

Otherwise, investigators admitted they were "up against a blank wall" in their effort to find the killer of the 59-year-old widow who was the principal owner of the Charleston Daily Mail.

No motive had been established for the killing, detectives said, and explained that until one is discovered they have no definite course to follow in the investigation.

An earlier clue which stirred speculation was a report of an unidentified photographer seen taking pictures of the Clark home about a week ago.

But in a phone call to Charleston police today, an Ohio man identified himself as the photographer. He said he was making the photographs for an architectural firm for a study of different types of homes. Police did not name the man.

Police Chief Dewey Williams said the piece of wood, little more than a fragment, was found in a pool of blood beside the victim's head. He said it was being examined under the possibility that it had splintered off whatever weapon was used to beat Mrs. Clark to death in her fashionable home Friday night.

The investigation was touched off yesterday when a caretaker and maid, reporting for work at the Clark residence, found her body on the floor of the big living room.

Mrs. Clark's 2-year-old grandson, Arch J. Alexander III, still lay sleeping in a nearby bedroom. Mrs. Clark had been caring for him while her daughter, Mrs. Arch J. Alexander Jr., was in a hospital where she had given birth to twins. An autopsy showed Mrs. Clark had died of multiple skull fractures and bleeding caused by blows on the head. There was no evidence of robbery or any other indication of a motive.

Churches Adding Members At Fastest Rate In History

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—Churches in the United States have been adding new members at the fastest rate in their history, the National Council of Churches said today.

Statistics gathered by the council show total church membership has soared to an all-time high of 92,277,129, a gain of 3,604,124 during 1952.

This represents a 4.1 per cent increase for the year. That's 2½ times as fast as the overall population growth during the period, and twice as big a gain as in the previous year.

The gain brought church membership to 59 per cent of the total U. S. population. In 1940, only 49 per cent of the people belonged to churches.

Construction Spending Hits Record Level

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board said today spending for construction hit new record levels this year and real estate sales remain high, but homes in some areas are now selling more slowly and at reduced prices.

Overall demand for housing is still increasing, the Reserve Board said in a study of real estate developments, although at a slackened pace.

Rents Increase

Rents have increased as federal controls were removed, the board noted.

The study indicated that real estate values reached a peak in 1951 and have remained fairly stable since.

The Reserve Board's survey of home building and selling added up to a picture of a still strong and active market, but one where production has now overtaken supply, giving the buyer a stronger bargaining position. Increasing rents, together with easier mortgage conditions, may make buyers out of today's renters.

The board said evidence so far would not indicate that the recent rise permitted in veterans and other government-insured housing mortgage interest rates has brought much more mortgage money into this market.

35 Billions A Year Rate

The board said: Total expenditure for new construction has increased steadily since the end of World War II except for a leveling off in 1948-49.

In the first seven months of 1953, outlays for new construction of all kinds reached the record rate, seasonally adjusted, of 35 billion dollars a year. That was eight per cent more than in 1952. Higher cost accounted for about half the dollar increase.

Motorcyclist Killed In Crash With Plane

NEVADA, Iowa, Aug. 23 (AP)—A motorcyclist was killed today when his machine and an airplane collided at the intersection of two runways at the Nevada airport.

Killed was Myrus Gibbs, 17, of Ames.

Gene Milsap, 31, of Nevada, pilot of the plane, and Richard Pierce, also of Nevada, a passenger, were shaken up. The small airplane was demolished.

The accident occurred shortly before the airport was to be closed for running of motorcycle races.

Balloon Explodes; 4 Plunge To Death

SIEGEN, Germany, Aug. 23 (AP)—A balloon carrying four persons exploded at an altitude of 8,000 feet near Siegen today and dropped the four to their deaths. They fell into the village of Littfeld. Police said the balloon captain was a Cologne engineer.

Investigators Reveal They Planned To Quiz Late Sen. LaFollette

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Investigating senators said today they believed secret Communist agents still are operating in government agencies because two or more Soviet espionage rings have never been fully exposed.

This statement came in the report on a detailed study of Communist infiltration of government made during the last year by the Senate internal security subcommittee.

Chairman Jenner (R-Ind) of this group said the "Soviet international organization has carried on a successful and important penetration of the United States government, and this penetration has not been fully exposed."

After tracing Communist infiltration of key government agencies and programs since the early 1930s, the report said:

"There is a mass of evidence and information on the hidden Communist conspiracy in government which is still inaccessible to the Federal Bureau of Investigation and to this subcommittee because persons who know the facts of this conspiracy are not cooperating with the security authorities of the country."

Many of the names of more than 70 former government employees and most of the incidents in the 50-page report have been previously aired in congressional hearings on communism.

The report takes these bits and pieces and fits them together in support of the committee conclusion that "the agents of this penetration have operated in accordance with a distinct design fashioned by their Soviet superiors."

One new disclosure is that the Senate investigating group had planned to ask testimony from former Sen. Robert M. La Follette Jr. (R-Wis.), who killed himself last Feb. 24.

However, La Follette himself was not a target. The subcommittee had planned to ask what he knew about Communist supporters who might have worked for congressional committees.

La Follette in 1947 had written in Collier's magazine that he knew from "first hand experience that Communist sympathizers infiltrated into committee staffs on Capitol Hill in Washington."

He wrote that investigations headed by himself and Senators Kilgore (D-WVa) and Murray (D-Mont) "had staffs that many senators believed had been infiltrated by fellow travelers."

No New-Type Jets In Red Air Show

MOSCOW, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Soviet Union put on a giant display of jet fighters and bombers today in its annual air show, but Western observers said they noted no new types.

Premier Georgi Malenkov, in gray tunic and gray peaked cap, watched through binoculars. (The foreign interest is primarily in whether Russia has developed an inter-continental bomber to carry the atom bomb or the hydrogen bomb. The known Soviet models are all regarded as inadequate.)

Lt. Gen. S. U. Rubanov, the military commander of the show, sent 424 military planes overhead. All were jets. Last year there were 182 jets in the display. Former Premier Stalin's son, Lt. Gen. Vassily Stalin, was the commander then.

Surrounded by top Soviet leaders, Malenkov watched the demonstration of Soviet air might for 75 minutes from the balcony of Tuschino Airport. He was one of 200,000 attending the show, twice postponed because of bad weather.

The figures were gathered from 251 religious bodies.

Protestant and Roman Catholic percentage gains were about the same during 1952, as they have been in recent past years. Protestants increased 3.9 per cent; Roman Catholic 3.5 per cent. The number of local churches increased from 284,592 to 285,277. Clergy members increased from 181,123 to 183,899.

Sunday School enrollment showed a record 6.4 per cent gain of nearly 2 million, bringing the total to 32,638,879.

Present membership totals for the nation's top six religious bodies are: Protestant, 54,229,963; Roman Catholic, 30,253,427; Jewish, 5,000,000; Eastern Orthodox, 2,353,783; Old Catholic and Polish National Catholic, 366,956; Buddhist, 73,000.

Tribal Trouble In Morocco

Moroccan tribesmen armed with wooden clubs demonstrate in Marrakech during the unrest which reached its climax with the dethronement of the sultan of Morocco and his replacement by French-backed Moulay Mohammed Ben Araf. The former Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef was exiled to Corsica by the French.

Patman Assails Anti-Trust Study Group Appointee

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Rep. Patman (D-Tex) today denounced as a "major blunder" the appointment of Prof. S. Chesterfield Oppenheim as co-chairman of the Atty. Gen. Brownell's national committee to study the anti-trust laws.

In a letter to the attorney general, Patman said:

"To the general public and most business firms, our anti-trust laws are a most vital and serious matter. We cannot afford to have them dissected and emasculated in the name of 'study' by one who has already prejudged and has long preached his personal views that such emasculation is necessary."

Appointed Last Month

Brownell appointed Oppenheim, a professor at the University of Michigan Law School, and Asst. Atty. Gen. Stanley N. Barnes as co-chairmen of the study group last month. Earlier, in announcing plans for the study, the attorney general said it would "give clarity, produce uniformity and insure a common-sense approach to enforcement" of the anti-trust laws.

Patman, co-author of the Robinson-Patman Anti-Trust Act, said in his letter to Brownell:

"It becomes obvious that the good name of the Justice Department is being sought as a cloak to shield the evil intentions of those who would destroy many of the anti-trust law gains that have been built up through the years."

'Major Blunder'

He added:

"For Prof. S. Chesterfield Oppenheim, as a private citizen, to hold the views he does is unfortunate—but that is his right. But for a man like him, with such predetermined and well-defined ideas on destroying anti-trust safeguards, to be chosen to run a so-called impartial study is most terrible; it is indeed a major blunder that may prove costly to our entire economy."

French Red Unions Refuse To End Strike

PARIS, Aug. 23 (AP)—Complete settlement of France's strike troubles was still snagged tonight by refusal of the Communist unions to order their followers back to work.

The non-Communist unions — Workers Force and the Christian Labor Federation — have given back to work orders in the postal, telegraph and telephone system, on the railroads and in the Paris bus and subway system.

But the Communist-led General Federation of Labor is still holding firm to its strike orders. It was not consulted in the negotiations between the government and non-Communist unions and does not feel bound by any agreements.

The Red union is the biggest in France, and is especially strong among railroad workers, so normalcy may still be a long way off.

Polio Foundation Reports

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said today that, during 1952, it spent almost 25 million dollars for treatment of some 80,000 persons.

The foundation's report said this represented an expenditure of 69 cents of every dollar raised by the annual March of Dimes campaign.

General Ignored By Returning GIs

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23 (AP)—Never did a general go so "unsaluted" by so many GIs.

As 326 men freed from Red Prison camps in Korea hurried down the gangplank of a transport here today, Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, 6th Army commander, stood at the bottom with hand outstretched.

But behind the general stood scores of relatives these men had not seen in as much as three years. Many a soldier brushed past Gen. Swing to the waiting arms of a wife or mother.

The gallant general played his part. For any who paused there was a handshake. For any who didn't there was an understanding smile.

Shah Says Iran Broke, Needs Aid

TEHRAN, Iran, Aug. 22 (AP)—Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi said today Iran is broke and must have help at once to survive.

At a tea party in the gorgeous gardens of his Saadabad Palace just north of Tehran, the 33-year-old monarch told newsmen:

"Immediate help is imperative. The treasury is very empty. We need help in the next few days."

We do not ask any nation in particular and we are not beggars. However, we must have help now if we are to save the country."

An economic battle for survival is the sequel to the royalist uprising that overthrew Premier Mohammed Mossadegh Wednesday.

Asked whether Iran would accept help from Russia, the shah said gravely: "We are ready to accept help from anybody."

The monarch accused Mossadegh's regime of bequeathing Iran a terrible situation. He said the misdeeds of the Mossadegh government will be published soon.

ROK Air Defense Tested

SEOUL, Monday, Aug. 24 (AP)—The United Nations air defense units have just completed a full scale 28-hour test of South Korean air defenses. It was the first such test since the armistice July 27.

The exercise tested the 5th Air Force radar warning net, Army anti-aircraft defenses and fighter interceptor defense tactics.

Six Die In Bus Plunge

'Fiction' Of Atomic Secrecy Hurts Nation, Scientist Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Atomic scientist Dr. Ralph Lapp attacked atomic secrecy today as a "fiction" that has hurt, not helped, our national defense. He called on President Eisenhower to speak out about it.

Lapp said on a television program, CBS "Man of the Week," that he did not believe theft of atomic secrets by such spies as Klaus Fuchs and Julius and Ethel Rosenberg did anything to speed up the Russian atomic energy development.

He said he was amazed to hear statements in "high places" inferring that such espionage helped the Russians get the A-bomb and H-bomb sooner.

"It is just not true," he said. "On the other hand, he asserted, the government has given the American people 'bootleg information,' and prevented the nation from preparing to defend itself."

150 More Yanks Freed, Bringing Total To 1,859

PANMUNJOM, Monday, Aug. 24 (AP)—The massive exchange of prisoners under the Korean armistice neared the end of its third week today with the number of Americans liberated inching toward the 2,000 mark.

The first delivery of 50 Americans of the 150 listed for freedom today began promptly at 9 a.m. (7 p.m., EST, Sunday). The Americans were quiet, almost reserved, but they appeared in good health.

Completion of today's exchange brings to 1,859 the U. S. prisoners freed in 20 days of Operation Big Switch. The Reds said, before the exchange began, they held 3,313 Americans.

44,629 Reds Liberated

Also returning today were 250 South Koreans. The United Nations Command was sending northward 2,402 Reds to bring to 44,629 the number of Communists liberated.

As usual, today's Korean Communist repatriates arrived shouting and singing lustily.

American prisoners freed here Sunday said they received more brutal treatment from the North Korean Reds than from the Chinese.

Some of the men said more than half the Allied prisoners captured by the Korean Reds early in the war died on death marches or in camps from lack of food and care.

One Of First Captured Freed

One of the very first soldiers captured was among the 150 American POWs returned Sunday. He was Sgt. Jaime O. Domenech, a Puerto Rican taken prisoner the afternoon of July 6, 1950. This was the day after American troops entered the Korean conflict.

He and several other Americans captured during early months of the war told stories of North Korean brutality which overshadowed even the countless incidents of brutality and torture related earlier by prisoners who had been in the hands of the Chinese Reds.

Six Die In Bus Plunge

SHAP, England, Aug. 23 (AP)—A bus packed with holiday makers plunged 300 feet off a fog-shrouded mountain pass into a ravine today, killing six passengers and injuring 34.

Capt. and Mrs. William B. Bennett had left their son George bedded down on the back seat with a pillow and blanket. Bennett is commander of the 313th Signal Battalion at nearby Ft. Meade.

About 8:30 a.m. little George awoke, turned on the car radio to amuse himself and began romping up and down the front seat.

Residents who had seen the car parked as early as 11:30 p.m. the night before, called police.

Navy Veteran Coaxed From 14th Floor Ledge

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—A Navy veteran was coaxed from a 14th-floor ledge of a Brooklyn hospital pleading and attempts to snatch him from his precarious perch.

Sidney Herman, 23, a Queens salesman, climbed onto the narrow strip at noon yesterday and sobbed to would-be rescuers:

"Everyone's against me, even my family. I'm going to jump." The crowd of onlookers, shouting all kinds of advice, included his mother and brother. He was at Fort Hamilton Veterans Hospital for treatment of a stomach ulcer and anxiety neuroses.

Drama-Packed Reunions Held On Frisco Pier

Anxious Relatives From 25 States On Hand To Greet Men

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23 (AP)—More than 300 of America's fighting sons came back today from the Reds' grim prison camps in Korea, sailing through fog-shrouded Golden Gate to a tumultuous welcome from the homeland many of them once wondered if they would ever see again.

The Navy transport Gen. Nelson M. Walker brought the first shipload—328—into the embracing arms of San Francisco Bay shortly after 7 a.m. Pacific Daylight Time (9 a.m. EST).

Anxious relatives from 25 states crowded a special section of the pier for reunion with warrior kin they had not seen in as much as three years.

'California Here I Come'

A band blared "California Here I Come," and those on ship and shore waved wildly as the big transport edged up to the pier.

The transport still was short of the dock when Mrs. Charles Mathews, of Jayess, Miss., spotted her husband, Mrs. Mathews, who had heard nothing since his capture Dec. 25, 1952, until a radio broadcast reported his release, waved wildly.

In the same instant, Mathews saw his wife and waved back. Both switched from laughter to tears as the emotion of the moment swept over them.

Within minutes, people around Mrs. Mathews at the dock and buddies of Mathews aboard the Walker were crying unashamedly.

From the pier floated the voice of Miss Elsie Norwood, a pretty brunette, singing "My Hero" and "You Belong to Me." She is a port of embarkation employee.

63 Families On Dock

Fire boats threw up geysers of water. At the dock a huge sign read, "Welcome Home."

Many in the group of 63 families who came to the dock for the earliest possible reunion with their loved ones held up identifying signs.

One simply read "Pinky." The family of Sgt. Donald B. Disney of Ashland, Ky., could not make it — so his folks wired the Moose Lodge in San Francisco to serve as proxies.

The Moose members were there with a sign reading: "Moose Lodge Welcome to Donald Disney."

The Walker also brought home 1,910 men of the 1st Marine Division, but they willingly took a back seat in the roaring welcome for the former prisoners.

Thief Takes Car And Sleeping Boy

BALTIMORE, Aug. 23 (AP)—An all-night search by police, relatives and an Army helicopter pilot ended today with the recovery of an automobile stolen while a 6-year-old boy slept in the back seat.

When found, more than nine hours later he was safe in the car, unaware it had been stolen.

The car was taken 'last night from its parking spot near the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall at Glen Burnie, about 10 miles south of the Curtis Bay area where it was spotted today.

Capt. and Mrs. William B. Bennett had left their son George bedded down on the back seat with a pillow and blanket. Bennett is commander of the 313th Signal Battalion at nearby Ft. Meade.

About 8:30 a.m. little George awoke, turned on the car radio to amuse himself and began romping up and down the front seat.

SIEGEN, Germany, Aug. 23 (AP)—A balloon carrying four persons exploded at an altitude of 8,000 feet near Siegen today and dropped all to their death. They fell with the basket into the village of Littfeld. Police said the balloon captain was a Cologne engineer.

Churches Adding Members At Fastest Rate In History

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—The figures were gathered from 251 religious bodies. Protestant and Roman Catholic percentage gains were about the same during 1952, as they have been in recent past years. Protestants increased 3.9 per cent; Roman Catholics 3.5 per cent. The number of local churches increased from 284,592 to 285,277. Clergymen increased from 181,123 to 183,899.

Sunday school enrollment showed a record 6.4 per cent gain of nearly 2 million, bringing the total to 32,638,879.

Present membership totals for the nation's top six religious bodies are:

Protestant, 54,229,963; Roman Catholic, 30,253,427; Jewish, 5,000,000; Eastern Orthodox, 2,353,783; Old Catholic and Polish National Catholic, 366,956; Buddhist, 73,000.

Investigators Reveal They Planned To Quiz Late Sen. LaFollette

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Investigating senators said today they believed secret Communist agents still are operating in government agencies because two or more Soviet espionage rings have never been fully exposed.

This statement came in the report on a detailed study of Communist infiltration of government made during the last year by the Senate internal security subcommittee.

Chairman Jenner (R-Ind) of this group said the "Soviet international organization has carried on a successful and important penetration of the United States government, and this penetration has not been fully exposed."

After tracing Communist infiltration of key government agencies and programs since the early 1930s, the report said:

Evidence Inaccessible To FBI "There is a mass of evidence and information on the hidden Communist conspiracy in government which is still inaccessible to the Federal Bureau of Investigation and to this subcommittee because persons who know the facts of this conspiracy are not cooperating with the security authorities of the country."

Many of the names of more than 70 former government employees and most of the incidents in the 50-page report have been previously aired in congressional hearings on communism.

The report takes these bits and pieces and fits them together in support of the committee conclusion that "the agents of this penetration have operated in accordance with a distinct design fashioned by their Soviet superiors."

One new disclosure is that the Senate investigating group had planned to ask testimony from former Sen. Robert M. La Follette Jr. (R-Wis.), who killed himself last Feb. 24.

LaFollette Not Target However, La Follette himself was not a target. The subcommittee had planned to ask what he knew about Communist supporters who might have worked for congressional committees.

La Follette in 1947 had written in Collier's magazine that he knew from "first hand experience that Communist sympathizers infiltrated into committee staffs on Capitol Hill in Washington."

He wrote that investigations headed by himself and Senators Kilgore (D-WVa.) and Murray (D-Mont.) "had staffs that many senators believed had been infiltrated by fellow travelers."

No New-Type Jets In Red Air Show MOSCOW, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Soviet Union put on a giant display of jet fighters and bombers today in its annual air show, but Western observers said they noted no new types.

Premier Georgi Malenkov, in gray tunic and gray peaked cap, watched through binoculars. (The foreign interest is primarily in whether Russia has developed an inter-continental bomber to carry the atom bomb or the hydrogen bomb. The known Soviet models are all regarded as inadequate.)

Lt. Gen. S. U. Rubanov, the military commander of the show, sent 424 military planes overhead. All were jets. Last year there were 182 jets in the display. Former Premier Stalin's son, Lt. Gen. Vassily Stalin, was the commander then.

Surrounded by top Soviet leaders, Malenkov watched the demonstration of Soviet air might for 75 minutes from the balcony of Tushino Airport. He was one of 200,000 attending the show, twice postponed because of bad weather.

The former Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef was exiled to Corsica by the French.

Patman Assails Anti-Trust Study Group Appointee

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Rep. Patman (D-Tex) today denounced as a "major blunder" the appointment of Prof. S. Chesterfield Oppenheim as co-chairman of the Atty. Gen. Brownell's national committee to study the anti-trust laws.

In a letter to the attorney general, Patman said:

"To the general public and most business firms, our anti-trust laws are a most vital and serious matter. We cannot afford to have them dissected and emasculated in the name of 'study' by one who has already prejudged and has long preached his personal views that such emasculation is necessary."

Appointed Last Month

Brownell appointed Oppenheim, a professor at the University of Michigan Law School, and Asst. Atty. Gen. Stanley N. Barnes as co-chairmen of the study group last month. Earlier, in announcing plans for the study, the attorney general said it would "give clarity, produce uniformity and insure a common-sense approach to enforcement" of the anti-trust laws.

Patman, co-author of the Robinson-Patman Anti-Trust Act, said in his letter to Brownell:

"It becomes obvious that the good name of the Justice Department is being sought as a cloak to shield the evil intentions of those who would destroy many of the anti-trust law gains that have been built up through the years."

Major Blunder

He added:

"For Prof. S. Chesterfield Oppenheim, as a private citizen, to hold the views he does is unfortunate—but that is his right. But for a man like him, with such pre-determined and well-defined ideas on destroying anti-trust safeguards, to be chosen to run a so-called impartial study is most terrible; it is indeed a major blunder that may prove costly to our entire economy."

French Red Unions Refuse To End Strike PARIS, Aug. 23 (AP)—Complete settlement of France's strike troubles was still snagged tonight by refusal of the Communist unions to order their followers back to work.

The non-Communist unions — Workers Force and the Christian Labor Federation — have given back to work orders in the postal, telegraph and telephone system, on the railroads and in the Paris bus and subway system.

But the Communist-led General Federation of Labor is still holding firm to its strike orders. It was not consulted in the negotiations between the government and non-Communist unions and does not feel bound by any agreements.

The Red union is the biggest in France, and is especially strong among railroad workers, so normalcy may still be a long way off.

General Ignored By Returning GIs

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23 (AP)—Never did a general go so "unsaluted" by so many GIs.

As 326 men freed from Red Prison camps in Korea hurried down the gangplank of a transport here today, Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, 6th Army commander, stood at the bottom with hand outstretched.

But behind the general stood scores of relatives these men had not seen in as much as three years. Many a soldier brushed past Gen. Swing to the waiting arms of a wife or mother.

The gallant general played his part. For any who paused there was a handshake. For any who didn't there was an understanding smile.

Shah Says Iran Broke, Needs Aid

TEHRAN, Iran, Aug. 22 (AP)—Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi said today Iran is broke and must have help at once to survive.

At a tea party in the gorgeous gardens of his Saadabad Palace just north of Tehran, the 33-year-old monarch told newsmen:

"Immediate help is imperative. The treasury is very empty. We need help in the next few days."

We do not ask any nation in particular and we are not beggars. However, we must have help now if we are to save the country."

An economic battle for survival is the sequel to the royalist uprising that overthrew Premier Mohammed Mossadegh Wednesday.

Asked whether Iran would accept help from Russia, the Shah said gravely: "We are ready to accept help from anybody."

The monarch accused Mossadegh's regime of bequeathing Iran a terrible situation. He said the misdeeds of the Mossadegh government will be published soon.

ROK Air Defense Tested

SEOUL, Monday, Aug. 24 (AP)—The United Nations air defense units have just completed a full scale 28-hour test of South Korean air defenses. It was the first such test since the armistice July 27.

The exercise tested the 5th Air Force radar warning net, Army anti-aircraft defenses and fighter interceptor defense tactics.

'Fiction' Of Atomic Secrecy Hurts Nation, Scientist Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Atomic scientist Dr. Ralph Lapp attacked atomic secrecy today as a "fiction" that has hurt, not helped, our national defense. He called on President Eisenhower to speak out about it.

Lapp said on a television program, CBS "Man of the Week," that he did not believe theft of atomic secrets by such spies as Klaus Fuchs and Julius and Ethel Rosenberg did anything to speed up the Russian atomic energy development.

He said he was amazed to hear statements in "high places" inferring that such espionage helped the Russians get the A-bomb and H-bomb sooner.

"It is just not true," he said. On the other hand, he asserted, secrecy has given the American people "bootleg information," and prevented the nation from preparing to defend itself.

Referring to the possibility that an atomic bomb could be planted "in the basement of city hall," Lapp said nobody would know what it was because the public has been denied any knowledge of the size and appearance of the bomb.

Lapp, former executive director of the Atomic Energy commission's Research and Development Board, said it was not the scientists or the AEC who are responsible for the secrecy. He was asked who he thought was responsible.

"The Pentagon," he said, "and some people on Capitol Hill." Lapp did not elaborate.

Challenging anyone to prove that atomic secrecy "has done us any good whatsoever," the scientist said the decision now rested with the President.

He said he believed Eisenhower must take the initiative and inform the American people about the danger they face.

150 More Yanks Freed, Bringing Total To 1,859

PANMUNJOM, Monday, Aug. 24 (AP)—The massive exchange of prisoners under the Korean armistice neared the end of its third week today with the number of Americans liberated inching toward the 2,000 mark.

The first delivery of 50 Americans of the 150 listed for freedom today began promptly at 9 a.m. (7 p.m., EST, Sunday). The Americans were quiet, almost reserved, but they appeared in good health.

Completion of today's exchange brings to 1,859 the U. S. prisoners freed in 20 days of Operation Big Switch. The Reds said, before the exchange began, they held 3,313 Americans.

Also returning today were 250 South Koreans. The United Nations Command was sending northward 2,402 Reds to bring to 44,629 the number of Communists liberated.

As usual, today's Korean Communist repatriates arrived shouting and singing lustily.

American prisoners freed here Sunday said they received more brutal treatment from the North Korean Reds than from the Chinese.

Some of the men said more than half the Allied prisoners captured by the Korean Reds early in the war died on death marches or in camps from lack of food and care.

One Of First Captured Freed

One of the very first soldiers captured was among the 150 American POWs returned Sunday. He was Sgt. Jaime O. Domenech, a Puerto Rican taken prisoner the afternoon of July 6, 1950. This was the day after American troops entered the Korean conflict.

He and several other Americans captured during early months of the war told stories of North Korean brutality which overshadowed even the countless incidents of brutality and torture related earlier by prisoners who had been in the hands of the Chinese Reds.

Drama-Packed Reunions Held On Frisco Pier

Anxious Relatives From 25 States On Hand To Greet Men

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23 (AP)—More than 300 of America's fighting sons came back today from the Reds' grim prison camps in Korea, sailing through fog-shrouded Golden Gate to a tumultuous welcome from the homeland many of them once wondered if they would ever see again.

The Navy transport Gen. Nelson M. Walker brought the first shipload—328—into the embracing arms of San Francisco Bay shortly after 7 a.m. Pacific Daylight Time (9 a.m. EST).

Anxious relatives from 25 states crowded a special section of the pier for reunion with warrior kin they had not seen in as much as three years.

"California Here I Come"

A band blared "California Here I Come," and those on ship and shore waved wildly as the big transport edged up to the pier.

The transport still was short of the dock when Mrs. Charles Mathews, of Jayess, Miss., spotted her husband, Mrs. Mathews, who had

C. W. Haschert To Manage Local Telephone Co.

Harman Transferred To Baltimore City

C. Walter Haschert, Jr., of Baltimore City, will assume his new duties as manager of the Cumberland office of the C. & P. Telephone Company today.

He succeeds Richard E. Harman, 842 Mt. Royal Avenue, who has been manager here for the past three years. Harman is being transferred to Baltimore City where he will be manager of the Southeastern quarter of Baltimore. This includes the exchanges at Orleans, Dickens, Peabody, Broadway and Eutaw.

The new manager here is a native of Baltimore City and began his career with the telephone firm in 1941 as a central office repairman. He held this post for about a year and a half and then was transferred to test deskman. In 1942 he entered the Army Signal Corps and served three years, two and one-half years of this was overseas in North Africa, Sicily and Italy. He received an honorable discharge in 1945 with the rating of tech sergeant.

In June, 1945, he resumed his duties as test deskman and in 1952 he transferred to the Commercial Department of the company as a representative. In January 1953, he became a staff assistant. He was then placed on detached service with the American Red Cross as executive assistant in communications in Baltimore.

Later he was assigned to the Baltimore main office of the C. & P. company as staff assistant, which post he held until named to the managership here.

Haschert was a member of the Televents, an organization of war veterans employed by the telephone company in Baltimore City and served as president of the group for a year. He has also been active in church work, being a member of the Church Council of Grace Lutheran Church in Baltimore for the past three years.

He is married to the former Miss Freda Overman and they have three children, Robert, 7, David, 4, and Joyce, three-weeks-old. Haschert and his family will move to Cumberland later on when he secures a residence.

He has a brother, George Haschert, who is area manager for the C. & P. Telephone Company at Bowie.

Hayfever Troubles Begin In District

The season hay fever sufferers detest is here again and will remain until the first frost.

However, the cool weather of this August is helping to cut down the annoyance. The average temperature shows this to be one of the coolest Augusts in recent years.

Those suffering from ragweed pollen, which accounts for 75 per cent of hayfever, began noticing it this past week.

Various types of medicines are used to relieve the suffering which is centered in the nose, nasopharynx and eyes.

The most effective way of combating it is to eliminate the pollen by cutting down ragweed. Ragweed pollen, is light, travels farther and causes the most trouble. The golden rod pollen is heavy and soon leaves the air.

Also helping sufferers is air conditioning which filters much of the pollen from the air. The real relief however, will come when the first frosts hit the season.

Delegate Reports On FOE National Meet

Herman S. Myers, secretary of Cumberland Aerie 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, was one of the local delegates who attended the recent national convention in Indianapolis, Ind.

Of particular interest to members of the organization, Myers said, was the adoption of an amendment by which aeries were permitted to continue paying sick and funeral benefits. Also noteworthy, he added, was the abolishment of the office of administrative director, here-to-for an appointive office.

Elected to head the national organization for the coming year was Robert W. Hanson, Milwaukee.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Find Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to stop bleeding—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations. Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a

The opening of the 1953-54 school term for Ridgeley Elementary and High schools will be preceded by the taking of a school census in the area by the teachers, M. M. Heiskell, principal of Ridgeley High, announced.

The census, he explained, which will be taken Tuesday, September 2, is required every five years and the information acquired is used as a basis for future needs or possible expansion.

The teachers in the two schools will put in a full day Tuesday, September 1, during which faculty and organizational meetings will be held and plans for the school year formulated.

Students are scheduled to report Thursday, September 3, for enrollment and scheduling of classes. These activities will be conducted from 9 to 11:30 a.m., Heiskell said.

No classes will be held Friday of next week, but teachers will report in that day for a check of schedules and to plan class and homeroom periods for the first full day of school, Tuesday, September 8. The faculty members will also prepare the forms and reports needed prior to the start of instruction, Heiskell added, and will have the necessary textbooks ready for the students when full-day sessions start.

No classes will be held on Monday (Labor Day), September 7, Heiskell stated.

The high school enrollment will be slightly larger than that of the elementary school, Heiskell announced, explaining that the expected number of students in the six higher grades will approximate 295, while 245 are expected in the first six grades.

There are two vacancies existing in the faculties of the Ridgeley schools, Heiskell revealed. A home economics instructor is needed for the high school, he said, and a First Grade teacher for the elementary school. Both are expected to be filled by the Mineral County (W. Va.) Board of Education prior to the opening of the school term.

Chamber Officials Inspect New Industry At Ellerslie

A new industry, the American Pallet Corporation, is in production in Ellerslie and an inspection trip to the plant was made by a group of officials of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce several days ago.

Harman Transferred To Baltimore City

C. Walter Haschert, Jr., of Baltimore City, will assume his new duties as manager of the Cumberland office of the C. & P. Telephone Company today.

He succeeds Richard E. Harman, 842 Mt. Royal Avenue, who has been manager here for the past three years. Harman is being transferred to Baltimore City where he will be manager of the Southeastern quarter of Baltimore. This includes the exchanges at Orleans, Dickens, Peabody, Broadway and Eutaw.

The new manager here is a native of Baltimore City and began his career with the telephone firm in 1941 as a central office repairman. He held this post for about a year and a half and then was transferred to test deskman. In 1942 he entered the Army Signal Corps and served three years, two and one-half years of this was overseas in North Africa, Sicily and Italy. He received an honorable discharge in 1945 with the rating of tech sergeant.

In June, 1945, he resumed his duties as test deskman and in 1952 he transferred to the Commercial Department of the company as a representative. In January 1953, he became a staff assistant. He was then placed on detached service with the American Red Cross as executive assistant in communications in Baltimore.

Later he was assigned to the

C. W. HASCHERT, JR.

Haschert was a member of the Televents, an organization of war veterans employed by the telephone company in Baltimore City and served as president of the group for a year. He has also been active in church work, being a member of the Church Council of Grace Lutheran Church in Baltimore for the past three years.

He is married to the former Miss Freda Overman and they have three children, Robert, 7; David, 4; and Joyce, three-weeks-old. Haschert and his family will move to Cumberland later on when he secures a residence.

He has a brother, George Haschert, who is area manager for the C. & P. Telephone Company at Bowie.

Hayfever Troubles Begin In District

The season hay fever sufferers detest is here again and will remain until the first frost.

However, the cool weather of this August is helping to cut down the annoyance. The average temperature shows this to be one of the coolest Augusts in recent years.

Those suffering from ragweed pollen, which accounts for 75 per cent of hayfever, began noticing it this past week.

Various types of medicines are used to relieve the suffering which is centered in the nose, nasopharynx and eyes.

The most effective way of combating it is to eliminate the pollen by cutting down ragweed. Ragweed pollen, is light, travels farther and causes the most trouble. The golden rod pollen is heavy and soon leaves the air.

Also helping sufferers is air conditioning which filters much of the pollen from the air. The real relief however, will come when the first frosts hit the section.

Delegate Reports On FOE National Meet

Herman S. Myers, secretary of Cumberland Aerie 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, was one of the local delegates who attended the recent national convention in Indianapolis, Ind.

Of particular interest to members of the organization, Myers said, was the adoption of an amendment by which aeries were permitted to continue paying sick and funeral benefits. Also noteworthy, he added, was the abolishment of the office of administrative director, here-to-fore an appointive office.

Elected to head the national organization for the coming year was Robert W. Hanson, Milwaukee.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Find Healing Substance That Does Both—
Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to stop bleeding—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a

School Census To Be Taken In Ridgeley Area Next Week

The opening of the 1953-54 school term for Ridgeley Elementary and High schools will be preceded by the taking of a school census in the area by the teachers. M. M. Heiskell, principal of Ridgeley High, announced.

The census, he explained, which will be taken Tuesday, September 2, is required every five years and the information acquired is used as a basis for future needs or possible expansion.

The teachers in the two schools will put in a full day Tuesday, September 2, during which faculty and organizational meetings will be held and plans for the school year formulated.

Students are scheduled to report Thursday, September 3, for enrollment and scheduling of classes. These activities will be conducted from 9 to 11:30 a.m., Heiskell said.

No classes will be held Friday of next week, but teachers will report in that day for a check of schedules and to plan class and homeroom periods for the first full day of school, Tuesday, September 8. The faculty members will also prepare the forms and reports needed prior to the start of instruction, Heiskell added, and will have the necessary textbooks ready for the students when full-day sessions start.

No classes will be held on Monday (Labor Day), September 7, Heiskell stated.

The high school enrollment will be slightly larger than that of the elementary school, Heiskell announced, explaining that the expected number of students in the six higher grades will approximate 295, while 245 are expected in the first six grades.

There are two vacancies existing in the faculties of the Ridgeley schools, Heiskell revealed. A home economics instructor is needed for the high school, he said, and a First Grade teacher for the elementary school. Both are expected to be filled by the Mineral County (W. Va.) Board of Education prior to the opening of the school term.

State's Demo Leaders Face Family Squabble

Mayor D'Alesandro Of Baltimore Will Seek Governorship

OCEAN CITY, Md., Aug. 23 (AP)—Maryland's Democratic party chiefs gathered here today faced with the almost certain realization that there will be a fight in the family before a candidate for governor is picked.

They had planned to come down here just to honor the women—and maybe do a little politicking among themselves.

But last night, Baltimore's peppery little Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro sprang an announcement on them—he said he's a candidate for governor.

For months now, the only thing party leaders have been able to agree upon is that they must, at all costs, avoid a fight in next Spring's primaries.

They tasted the bitter ashes of defeat last November when they lost their only seat in the U. S. Senate and gave up their three-to-three split in Congress by dropping another seat in the Lower House.

Since then, the word among the party faithful has been "harmony."

It remains to be seen whether or not they will unite behind the politically experienced D'Alesandro who served in Congress from 1938 until 1947 when he was elected mayor for the first of two terms.

Mahoney Considered Candidate

George P. Mahoney, Baltimore contractor who has been defeated as a candidate for governor before and also in a bid for a Senate seat, is considered a candidate.

Mahoney has been quietly touring all of the state's 23 counties and has employed a former Washington wire service newsmen in what looks like the nucleus of a campaign staff.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, is also regarded as almost certain to run for the state's top office.

Byrd has told the University's board of regents to look around for a successor, indicating that he is "likely" to retire in January of 1955. That date coincides with the inauguration month for the governor. Maryland voters will elect in the fall of next year.

There are many in the party's circle of leaders who would like to see former Gov. William Preston Lane Jr., run for office again.

And Eastern Shoremen look to State Comptroller Millard P. Tawes for leadership, whether as a possible candidate or as an adviser.

In a Baltimore dinner here earlier this summer in honor of Tawes, Dr. Byrd hinted at an "agreement on a course of action" between the popular eastern shoreman and himself.

But after the banquet, Tawes indicated that no definite commitments had been made.

Figures On Baltimore Punch

D'Alesandro and Mahoney were in Ocean City last night in advance of the annual reception of the United Democratic Women of Maryland which opened this afternoon.

Many more party leaders were expected to arrive.

The Baltimore mayor is obviously figuring that if the other potential candidates fail to support him, they'll be forced to divide the county votes and perhaps leave him with the big punch of Baltimore city support.

The city has 42 votes in its six legislative districts under Maryland's primary system and the counties share another 110.

If the fiery, 50-year-old son of an Italian immigrant can carry the city and two other opponents come out even in state support, D'Alesandro would need no more than two of the bigger counties to win.

And if the county votes were divided among three other candidates, his chances would be even better.

The mayor said his campaign would be based upon two main points.

1. "My record during 28 years of public service, with special emphasis on the accomplishments of my administration of the Baltimore city government."

2. "My belief that the Democratic party of Maryland will unite behind a candidate who can and will win in the 1954 general election."

French-Morocco Dispute Puts U.S. On New Hot Spot

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP)—The United States found itself on a second United Nations hot spot today—the French-Morocco dispute—just as its fight to keep India out of the Korea peace conference neared a crisis.

The two diplomatic issues, which have complex links came up within less than a week after the U. N. General Assembly returned to discuss the peace conference makeup. Even alone, each issue furnished a stiff test to the Eisenhower administration.

A State Department spokesman yesterday expressed concern about the situation in Morocco. Then the French embassy protested at references to violence in the statement and asked whether the United States intended to chide the French.

Afterward a French embassy spokesman said he had assurances from the highest State Department authority that there was no rebuff intended and that it did not reflect United States policy. The department did not challenge this assertion.

The council will meet probably Wednesday afternoon, at the request of an Arab-Asian bloc, who charged the French with unlawful intervention in deposing the sultan of Morocco last Thursday and putting his pro-French cousin on the throne.

The Wednesday date is being considered in the hope that general debate on the peace conference makeup will be completed by Wednesday morning in the 60-nation assembly Political Committee.

The 11 Security Council members, as well as the delegates of 14 Arab-Asian countries, want to have their top men at the council meeting. That would pull 25 delegation spokesmen out of the committee meeting. The committee would recess and then come back Thursday to begin voting on the wording of resolutions designed to seat the 15 U. N. belligerents and South Korea, Russia and India at the peace conference table with Red China and North Korea.

Canadian River Yields Body Of U. S. Executive

BURNS LAKE, B. C., Aug. 23 (AP)—The Royal Canadian Mounted Police said today the body of Fred T. Whiting, 62, Westinghouse Electric Corp., vice president from Chicago, was found yesterday in frigid Morice River in Northern British Columbia.

Whiting vanished on a fishing trip last Thursday. A coroner's inquest determined Whiting died of drowning.

The body was found after dragging the river for 10 hours.

Whiting flew into the isolated fishing area Thursday in a private plane with Gwilym A. Price, Westinghouse president, and S. A. Montgomery of Standard Oil of Indiana.

Whiting was left at a base camp. When the others returned to rejoin him he was missing. His fishing tackle bag was found hanging from a tree branch.

(That announcement said Moscow was cutting East Germany's reparations bill in half to $3,171,000,000 payable over the next 15 years. That apparently indicates East Germany has paid Moscow 634 million dollars in the last two years. Western reparations experts have said that Russia has been "looting" East Germany's economy for years.)

Ex-POW Returns To Learn He'll Receive Honor Medal

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23 (AP)—A slim, fair-haired Marine lieutenant came home from Korea today and learned officially for the first time that he has an appointment with President Eisenhower to receive the nation's highest award, the Medal of Honor.

Lt. George H. O'Brien Jr., 26, of Big Spring, Tex., arrived aboard the transport Gen. Nelson M. Walker, on which he was in charge of eight of the liberated 328 prisoners of war in the first shipload to come home.

He was met at the dock by a delegation of officers headed by Col. Arthur T. Mason, chief of staff of the Marine Corps Department of the Pacific, who told him he had been awarded the Medal of Honor.

O'Brien was not too surprised because he had heard "scuttlebutt" on the ship. He said he was "pleased and proud," but said "I don't think I deserve it. The boys in my platoon did all the work."

The President announced in Denver Aug. 17 O'Brien was being awarded the Medal of Honor.

O'Brien will go to Washington to receive the medal from the President on a date which has not yet been set.

Score Arrested In Cecil County "Bookie" Raids

ELKTON, Md., Aug. 23 (AP)—State police conducted separate raids in Cecil County late yesterday, arresting more than 20 in a long-planned crackdown on bookmaking.

About 14 individuals were held as state's witnesses, and another seven were held for the grand jury on bookmaking charges.

Those held for grand jury action were:

Louis Alagia, 55; Ambrose Pierce, 38, and Louis Rothwell, 35, all of Elkton. They were arrested in a private home in Elkton.

Merrill Gibson, 50, taken into custody in a home near Elkton. James and Ernest Montgomery, Rising Sun brothers taken in a tavern at Rising Sun.

Robert Roy White, 50, picked up in a Perryville tourist cabin. Cecil County State's Attorney J. Albert Roney said all but Rothwell had taken out federal gambling tax stamps at one time or another since the law requiring gamblers to buy the stamp went into effect in November of 1951.

White's bail was set at $3,000 and the others were held in jail of $2,000.

Needs Will Determine If A-Arms Go Overseas

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Army said today that the practical needs of U. S. forces overseas will determine whether they are to be equipped with any atomic cannon.

None of the 280 MM cannon, capable of firing an atomic shell as well as conventional ammunition, has yet been sent anywhere overseas, a spokesman added.

Twice within the last few months unidentified sources in Paris have said some of the big weapons would be sent to the U. S. forces in Europe, but each time the Army has said none has been sent so far.

There is nothing in the atomic law to prevent the Army from moving the guns anywhere the United States has defense responsibilities. They could be shipped wherever the Army deemed it necessary long with their conventional, high explosive shells, but presidential approval would be required under existing law to send atomic warheads for the shells outside of the United States.

Capehart Appoints Trade Study Group

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) today named members of a Citizens Advisory Committee which will aid his Banking Committee in a study of "the financial aspects of international trade."

Capehart's committee was ordered to make the study in a Senate resolution sponsored by himself and Sen. Maybank (D-SC), senior minority member of the committee.

Pilotless Plane Takes Off, Lands

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Aug. 23 (AP)—A 2-seater light plane with a mind of its own took off from Ford Airport here today without its pilot.

Owner Walter Warner, who had just spun the propeller, was left in the dust behind.

Climbing into the sky, the little craft buzzed around at altitudes up to 4,000 feet.

State police and sheriff's men were called. But all they could do was stand and gape at it. Then the U. S. Air Force was notified. It sent up a plane from Kinross airbase near Sault Ste. Marie with orders to shoot down the runaway soloist.

But the little plane, fresh out of gasoline, just glided to a 3-point landing in the tree-tops 15 miles from its takeoff point. It had been in the air 65 minutes.

SALISBURY, Aug. 23 (AP)—Dr. St. Elmo Brady Jr., 31, of Cambridge, will appear before U. S. Commissioner Lewis C. Merriman here Thursday for a hearing on narcotics charges.

The young Negro doctor was arrested in his Cambridge office yesterday on a warrant charging him with selling dilaudide, an opium derivative, to a federal narcotics agent. He was released under $1,000 bond pending a hearing.

Narcotics officials said the arrest followed at least half a dozen previous transactions between Brady and undercover agents.

SALISBURY, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia closed their annual convention here today with a memorial service for members who died last year.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 23 (AP)—Advance reports show that Maryland's 1953 American Cancer Society fund goal of $310,000 may be exceeded by about 20 per cent.

The society announced that a final tabulation of last April's campaign, to be made early next month, will come to approximately $375,000, based on figures available now.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—A civilian employee of the Air Force drowned yesterday while swimming at nearby Chevy Chase lake pool.

The victim was tentatively identified as Charles J. Libert, 28, of Mount Rainier, Md. A lifeguard at the pool said the man had dived into the pool in only four feet of water. Three lifeguards jumped in when they saw something was wrong, pulled him out and began to administer artificial respiration.

Editors Disagree If Sen. McCarthy Threat To Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—James Kerney Jr., editor of the Trenton (N. J.) Times contended today that Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) has endangered freedom of the press in his fight with the Washington Post and James A. Wechsler, editor of the New York Post.

But Benjamin M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Star, disagreed. He said he doesn't think McCarthy "is big enough" to endanger press freedom.

"Furthermore, McKelway said, 'I don't think Sen. McCarthy wants to do anything to the press because the press is what has made him as big as he is.'"

McKelway and Kerney debated the issue on the NBC television program "American Forum of the Air." Kerney was joined by Ed Edstrom, correspondent for the Louisville Courier Journal, who insisted McCarthy had infringed press freedom and should not be allowed to do so again.

John O'Donnell, Washington columnist for the New York Daily News, said McCarthy had "absolutely not" endangered freedom of the press. To say that he has, he declared, "is absolutely foolish."

O'Donnell added that Wechsler and J. Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post, had used the McCarthy dispute "in getting good promotion and free advertising for their papers with a skill that makes me cringe with envy at times."

McCarthy's feud with Wechsler stems from the editor's appearance before the Senate investigations subcommittee in which Wechsler contends he was intimidated.

Unknown Soldier Gets Aerial Salute

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Jet bombers on a 3,000-mile non-stop flight from Florida and jet fighters from Southern Virginia teamed today in a colorful aerial salute to the Unknown Soldier.

They flew in low, slow "jost buddy" formation—with one vacant place in their close-fitting ranks—over the Unknown Soldier's tomb in Arlington National Cemetery during a memorial ceremony there.

The flight also honored the memory of two great military fliers, the late Gens. H. H. (Hap) Arnold, war-time chief of the Army Air Force, and Muir Fairchild, former vice chief of staff of the Air Force.

The five bombers—six-jet Boeing B47s from MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Fla.—and eight fighters—Q Republic F84s from Langley Air Force Base, Va.—usually fly faster than 600 miles an hour. Yet they coordinated their movements so expertly they arrived over the cemetery at the exact scheduled time, 9:40 a.m.

Score Arrested In Cecil County "Bookie" Raids

ELKTON, Md., Aug. 23 (AP)—State police conducted separate raids in Cecil County late yesterday, arresting more than 20 in a long-planned crackdown on bookmaking.

About 14 individuals were held as state's witnesses, and another seven were held for the grand jury on bookmaking charges.

Those held for grand jury action were:

Louis Alagia, 55; Ambrose Pierce, 38, and Louis Rothwell, 35, all of Elkton. They were arrested in a private home in Elkton. Merrill Gibson, 50, taken into custody in a home near Elkton. James and Ernest Montgomery, Rising Sun brothers taken in a tavern at Rising Sun.

Robert Roy White, 50, picked up in a Perryville tourist cabin. Cecil County State's Attorney J. Albert Roney said all but Rothwell had taken out federal gambling tax stamps at one time or another since the law requiring gamblers to buy the stamp went into effect in November of 1951.

White's bail was set at $3,000 and the others were held in bail of $2,000.

Needs Will Determine If A-Arms Go Overseas

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Army said today that the practical needs of U. S. forces overseas will determine whether they are to be equipped with any atomic cannon.

None of the 280 MM cannon, capable of firing an atomic shell as well as conventional ammunition, has yet been sent anywhere overseas, a spokesman added.

Twice within the last few months unidentified sources in Paris have said some of the big weapons would be sent to the U. S. forces in Europe, but each time the Army has said none has been sent so far.

There is nothing in the atomic law to prevent the Army from moving the guns anywhere the United States has defense responsibilities. They could be shipped wherever the Army deemed it necessary long with their conventional, high explosive shells, but presidential approval would be required under existing law to send atomic warheads for the shells outside of the United States.

Pilotless Plane Takes Off, Lands

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Aug. 23 (AP)—A 2-seater light plane with a mind of its own took off from Ford Airport here today without its pilot.

Owner Walter Warner, who had just spun the propeller, was left in the dust behind.

Climbing into the sky, the little craft buzzed around at altitudes up to 4,000 feet.

State police and sheriff's men were called. But all they could do was stand and gape at it. Then the U. S. Air Force was notified. It sent up a plane from Kinross airbase near Sault Ste. Marie with orders to shoot down the runaway soloist.

But the little plane, fresh out of gasoline, just glided to a 3-point landing in the tree-tops 15 miles from its takeoff point. It had been in the air 65 minutes.

State Briefs

SALISBURY, Aug. 23 (AP)—Dr. St. Elmo Brady Jr., 31, of Cambridge, will appear before U. S. Commissioner Lewis C. Merriman here Thursday for a hearing on narcotics charges.

The young Negro doctor was arrested in his Cambridge office yesterday on a warrant charging him with selling dilaudide, an opium derivative, to a federal narcotics agent. He was released under $1,000 bond pending a hearing.

Narcotics officials said the arrest followed at least half a dozen previous transactions between Brady and undercover agents.

SALISBURY, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia closed their annual convention here today with a memorial service for members who died last year.

At yesterday's session the Elks chose Edgar Slaughter of Easton, Md. as their new regional president. Charles L. Mobley of Hagerstown, was elected first vice president.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 23 (AP)—Advance reports show that Maryland's 1953 American Cancer Society fund goal of $310,000 may be exceeded by about 20 per cent.

The society announced that a final tabulation of last April's campaign, to be made early next month, will come to approximately $375,000, based on figures available now.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—A civilian employee of the Air Force drowned yesterday while swimming at nearby Chevy Chase lake pool.

The victim was tentatively identified as Charles J. Libert, 28, of Mount Rainier, Md. A lifeguard at the pool said the man had dived into the pool in only four feet of water. Three lifeguards jumped in when they saw something was wrong, pulled him out and began to administer artificial respiration.

Editors Disagree If Sen. McCarthy Threat To Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—James Kerney Jr., editor of the Trenton (N. J.) Times contended today that Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) has endangered freedom of the press in his fight with the Washington Post and James A. Wechsler, editor of the New York Post.

But Benjamin M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Star, disagreed. He said he doesn't think McCarthy "is big enough" to endanger press freedom.

"Furthermore, McKelway said, 'I don't think Sen. McCarthy wants to do anything to the press because the press is what has made him as big as he is.'"

McKelway and Kerney debated the issue on the NBC television program "American Forum of the Air." Kerney was joined by Ed Edstrom, correspondent for the Louisville Courier Journal, who insisted McCarthy had infringed press freedom and should not be allowed to do so again.

John O'Donnell, Washington columnist for the New York Daily News, said McCarthy had "absolutely not" endangered freedom of the press. To say that he has, he declared, "is absolutely foolish."

O'Donnell added that Wechsler and J. Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post, had used the McCarthy dispute "in getting good promotion and free advertising for their papers with a skill that makes me cringe with envy at times."

McCarthy's feud with Wechsler stems from the editor's appearance before the Senate investigations subcommittee in which Wechsler contends he was intimidated.

Small Stuff

By most government standards, the new Small Business Administration is a peanut operation. William D. Mitchell, the new administrator, will have only $55,000,000 in the till when he starts actual operations, although at the outset Congress had contemplated setting him up in business with $275,000,000 to lend to small worthy customers. But it doesn't seem to matter much to Mitchell.

As he sees it, the intent of the act setting up his agency is a far cry from the purposes behind the old Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The relatively small amount available to him, as he explained at his initial press conference, will be used to trigger a loan philosophy under which communities and private investors will be attracted to the aid of small businesses.

Mitchell hopes to be able to get together a pool amounting to approximately $500,000,000 for new small business or for a helping hand to already established small businesses. He wants to get small private enterprises in the habit of looking elsewhere than the government for help.

Mitchell's explanation of the "new way" included a case history. He told about the Maine Development Credit Corporation, which is a state-wide, locally managed, non-governmental lending corporation. In addition to encouraging loans to help going businesses, the Maine corporation has succeeded in attracting more than 25 new industries "down East." Mitchell said he would like to spend some time trying to get similar schemes under way in other states.

"The accent, it is clear, is definitely on 'self help,' rather than government help.

Gardener's Delight

This is the time of year when many a garden resembles one vast, waving stretch of pampas. This reflects the changing times. In a former era a weedy garden was a sure sign of shiftlessness and was a worse social stigma than being posted at the club for nonpayment of dues.

But look what it says in a news item. In an experiment in Missouri, agricultural specialists allowed a crop of corn to get well started then let the weeds have their way. Weeds being weeds, they prospered. Although if they had known they were being purposely used they probably wouldn't have grown at all.

Anyhow, the weeds were left as a cover crop, which checked winter erosion and were plowed under next spring with salubrious results. The broad conclusion the experimenters appear to draw is that weeds can be used if they are properly controlled. In the case of small crop plants, the big weeds must be controlled. A quick overcover with a small sickle bar several times a summer will do the trick—unless there's too much rain.

Like many another innovation, this has more than one side. Making weeds work for him is a challenge to the gentleman gardener with the questing mind. It's also a boon to the lazy gent. Gardeners know, in their own minds, in which category they fall. But no one can prove it.

Keeping Trees Friendly

It was Joyce Kilmer who gave expression to the universal love of trees in his little poem which ends on the note that "only God can make a tree." Henry Van Dyke, who spent much time amid the cloistering trees of Princeton, went a step further in saying that "He that planteth a tree is the servant of God."

It remained for the tree warden of Greenwich, Conn., to make a distinction between trees that are friends of man and those which are not — between trees that are planted in populated areas and those which grow up as "weeds." Many who read the views of this town official must have recalled the old poem "Woodman, Spare That Tree!" For he has declared war on "weed trees" that grow up by themselves and often cause difficulties for urban communities by interfering with electric power lines.

Urban residents who enjoy tree-lined streets with grateful summer shade would protest any attack upon these sheltering friends. Yet numbers of these trees have been uprooted by nature itself in severe storms and have sagged across wires and cut off the current that is so essential to man's comfort, even existence.

Greenwich's warden thinks that in city areas, man could save himself a lot of trouble by doing away with such trees as poplars, willows, tulip trees, catalpas, apple, horse chestnut and certain elms. These he calls messy, unmanageable, brittle or sickly.

There may be disagreement with his general indictment, but he suggests that by using approved types of trees whose growth can be controlled and whose limbs can be trained so as not to interfere with power lines, conditions may be produced in which trees and wires can "live together in peace."

Some Day, Perhaps

Some day the American public will go on the war path as a result of being regarded as an "easy mark." When that time comes there will be a stampede of leeches for the border because it will be too hot in the United States for them. But right now they are enjoying a harvest.

The stage is set for their get-the-money gouges. They organize a do-good movement perhaps to provide drinking fountains for giraffes in parched Africa or a clinic for the relief of stubbed toes in a high, rocky country. All they need as equipment is a letterhead containing an imposing list of names.

Their appeals to jar money out of Americans are founded upon sentiment and a challenge to the proverbial charitable inclination. But soon somebody will rediscover that charity begins at home and it will so amaze him that he will begin to practice it and preach it. In time he will make converts, perhaps.

But before he does these United States will be gyped out of some tremendous sums and in many instances the beneficiaries will smirk when they get the money and murmur, "suckers." Unfortunately, some worthy causes will suffer because of the army of leeches growing fat sucking blood money from a glib America.

Straying Thoughts

It happens annually at almost precisely this point on the calendar. Through the hum of the fan the thought suddenly intrudes—why, it isn't much more than 100 shopping days until Christmas!

What is responsible for this annual aberration, if that is what it is, has never been ascertained. Wishful thinking, no doubt. A desire for relief from the heat.

Not that it is especially important! But Christmas is drawing nearer at that.

Eat The Same But Less

Physicians agree that obesity is a serious disease and that overeating is responsible for 95 per cent of all cases. But the members of the medical profession are not unanimous on why overweight individuals have the appetite to eat so well. Physicians who believe that the origin is psychological advise their corpulent patients, and counteract anxiety, insecurity, and mother-in-law trouble along with a low caloric diet. At the other extreme are the more sympathetic medics who claim reducing is a matter of will power and they either shame or scare these men and women into consuming less food.

In my opinion, the cause of obesity varies from person to person. At the moment, psychological factors are stressed but this explanation has many drawbacks. After all, most of us are bothered by some emotional problem. Feelings of insecurity, self-pity, and frustration are common and in my own experience lead more often to loss of appetite. It is easy to understand how an ungainly figure can precipitate or aggravate such attitudes.

If the source is not psychological, what makes people overeat? Many come from or marry into a family where eating is stressed; the plates are heaped high and criticism follows when every bit is not consumed. As more and more weight is gained, the accumulated fat must be fed so that any attempt to curtail the menus leaves the person hungry. Others put on weight during the inactivity associated with convalescence from an illness or fail to get back into shape after pregnancy.

As a rule, however, most "fatties" get that way by degrees. It becomes a habit to eat a little more of this or that and so a gain of 15 pound every month or so is not disturbing. By the end of the year they are 5 or 6 pounds heavier and the next year, 10, and the next, 15. Suddenly they are shocked to realize their suit or girdle size is in the heavyweight class; the process has been so gradual they hardly noticed it or they may have blamed it on middle aged spread.

This gradual weight gain means one thing: the individual is eating or drinking just a little more than he needs. The "little more" usually is sugar, fat, or alcohol. This is in keeping with government statistics which show that the average American family is consuming more of these items than did their forefathers. The remedy does not require a fancy diet, food supplements, 4 mile hikes daily, rowing machines, or appetite reducers. The best bet is to eat the same but less. Another plan is to cut down on the "little" pound increasers such as the extra spoonful of sugar in every cup of coffee, the fat on meat, gravy on potatoes, and rich dressings on salad. By eliminating these extras, many individuals are able to keep in trim. The same can be said of cocktails which contain many more calories than the bread and potatoes so often passed up by the overweight. Modifications along this line are not difficult and require less will power than attempting to follow an entirely new diet that is foreign to the would be reducer.

Armed Services Still Waste Millions In Duplicate Buying; GSA's Forbes Fumbles Job Of Streamlining Purchases

WASHINGTON—Ever since the Army and Navy allegedly were unified, efficiency experts have been trying to eliminate the greatest waste in government — duplicate buying by the armed services. The three services waste millions bidding against each other for common-use items and this was one of the things unification was supposed to abolish.

Yet, after four years of talk and tons of paper work, agreement has been reached on the standardized purchase of only five items — toilet paper, two types of soap, and two types of paper towels. This leaves 299,995 common-use items regarding which the armed services still bid against each other.

One bottleneck has been Russell Forbes, No. 2 man of the General Services Administration which buys for most government agencies. Ironically it was Forbes who drafted the unified purchasing plan in the first place but now seems to be unable to carry out his own plan. Forbes was finally given nothing else to do except arrange for the General Services Administration to take over the purchasing, stocking, and distributing of every-day items used by the armed services. Yet except for toilet paper, soap, and paper towels, he has accomplished little more than hold meetings and write letters.

As a result of Forbes' slow-motion campaign, the three services are still competing with each other on the open market for such common-use articles as pencils, paper, furniture, light bulbs, carpets, and venetian blinds.

One Million Pencils

For example, the three services spend more than $75 million on stationery and paper alone. Experts claim at least $25 million would be saved if the General Services Administration did the buying for all three. For until the supply systems are unified, the Army, Navy, and Air Force will continue to indulge in the costly luxury of overbuying.

For instance, the Army has a full year's supply of paper towels on hand, while the Navy has millions of pencils stored away. Yet if the Air Force needs towels or pencils, it will go out and buy more of its own instead of drawing from the already overstocked Army and Navy warehouses.

Technically, GSA has already taken over much of the purchasing for the Air Force. However, this still hasn't been combined with the Army and Navy, so little saving has resulted.

Meanwhile, Forbes holds "area of understanding" meetings every week and writes letters at the rate of three a week. Most of his letters are exchanged with the Pentagon's Admiral M. L. Ring and are addressed "Dear Mort."

This column has seen this revealing correspondence and it doesn't inspire confidence in GSA efficiency. "Dear Mort," says Forbes in one letter which gives some indication of his dillydallying. "We discussed the subject generally at an area of understanding meeting. But I believe we reached no conclusion as to whether action should be instituted."

In The Dark

In a rare show of candor, Forbes complained in another letter that he didn't really understand what was happening at the "area of understanding" meetings.

"In this current phase (of the meetings)," he wrote, "I find myself very much in the dark about what we actually decided."

At another point, Forbes' inaction apparently got under the skin of the Pentagon brass and caused Admiral Charles W. Fox, then chief of naval supply, to write a critical memorandum. This caused Forbes to complain to Admiral Ring in a letter dated Aug. 8, 1952.

"In this memorandum, Admiral Fox paints me as a politician, a delayer," wrote Forbes indignantly. "In doing so, Admiral Fox has stretched the truth far beyond its elastic limits. As you so well know, I am neither a politician nor a delayer."

Following this outburst, Forbes wrote more letters and held more meetings, but as far as the final results are concerned, they apply only to soap, paper towels, and toilet paper.

Not Good For GM

The entire production policy of the Defense Department may be revamped as a result of a fire at Lavonia, Mich.

The fire occurred in the giant General Motors plant which produces hydromatic transmission drives for such GM cars as Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Cadillac; also such non-GM cars as Nash, Kaiser, Lincoln. Unfortunately, GM had concentrated all its hydromatic production in this one plant, and as a result few GM cars can be equipped with hydromatics until after the first of the year. Oldsmobile and Cadillac will have to use Buick's dynaflo while Pontiac will use Chevrolet power drive — at a cost of a good many million dollars extra at GM.

While Charles Wilson, long-er concerned with General Motors profits, Defense Department officials are concerned with the lesson being drawn from the Lavonia fire. For the "single source" operation conducted by GM at Lavonia is exactly what Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson has been preaching at the Pentagon.

Contending that what's good for General Motors is good for the United States, Wilson not only has been preaching it, but he has put in force a new policy of concentrating production only in the bigger, more efficient factories.

While this will probably save the taxpayer money, many military men feel that it also jeopardizes the safety of the nation. For one factory in time of war can be put out of commission with a single A-bomb, just as General Motors hydromatics were knocked out of production at Lavonia.

The Chinese Army

In terms of manpower, Communist China has produced a fighting army of 4,000,000 men, a part of which, at least, is modernly armed. This army has managed to defeat 17 nations including the United States and Great Britain, in the Korean War.

While it is true that such experts as General Douglas MacArthur, Matthew Ridgway, James Van Fleet and Mark Clark have stated publicly that they could have defeated this army but for political intervention, the fact is that they did not defeat it. Mao Tze-tung, in the eyes of the Asiatics, can claim the credit that he is the first Oriental since 1905, when Japan defeated Russia, who held a coalition of Westerners at bay. This single historic assertion makes Soviet China the leading power in the Asiatic world, particularly as it happens to be true.

Politically, Soviet China has made tremendous strides. It has, with the assistance of Soviet Russia, managed to separate Great Britain from the United States on a basic issue, namely, the Asiatic program. More significantly, for the first time in the history of the United States, Canada, under the leadership of Lester B. Pearson, who in his younger years was influenced by the Institute of Pacific Relations, is not standing with the United States.

Furthermore, Mao Tze-tung has so scared Nehru of India that he has practically reduced him to an agent of Chinese policy in the Western world. Nehru cannot altogether be blamed for being frightened. He sees no force that is free to save Burma, Indo-China and Thailand from conquest by Soviet China.

India could be conquered from these areas and from Tibet, Assam, Nepal and Bhutan unless the United States, assisted by Great Britain, were to occupy India and use it as a base against Soviet China. That alternative, from Nehru's standpoint, would be just as bad.

While these are hypothetical questions to us, to Nehru and India they are important realities. Since the beginning of the Korean War, Nehru has lived in terror that Soviet China would defeat the so-called United Nations forces. With that twist which is so characteristic of Orientals, instead of supporting the United States, Nehru first adopted the position of a neutral, then became a broker for Stalin, and finally passed into an active protagonist of the Communist Chinese. It is a response to desperation.

History is made of such shifts in the relations among nations. From the beginning of the Korean War, this column has been calling attention, sometimes bawling so, to the dangers of permitting Soviet China to win this war and become a world power. While some of our statesmen—most of them—were bogged down in European politics, Russia with historic prescience devoted itself to Asia.

Russia's reasoning was that no matter what happened in Europe, geography, manpower and natural resources made the East of Asia the center of the earth in the second half of the 20th Century. It accepted as inevitable that China would ultimately explode into motion. Russia's objective was to keep China moving southward; otherwise such a force as has been let loose there would encroach upon Russian territories. Every aid was given to Mao-Tze-tung to achieve this objective.

This movement began in 1919. I witnessed its early stages from 1919 to 1931 intimately. I was associated with the Student Movement in China in 1919 which was its first shock effort. I knew personally and closely most of the Chinese and many of the Russians involved in the earliest stages of this revolution. Since 1919, I have written probably millions of words about it but the West rejected an accurate picture because it preferred a romantic one.

The explosive force of Chinese imperialism is now in full motion. For the first time since the Emperor Chien Lung (1736-95), China is now expanding to every part of Asia into which the Chinese cultural influence has ever spread, but this will never satisfy Mao Tze-tung who will seek to incorporate into the Chinese orbit all the lands of East Asia, including India.

Today, India must be regarded as already within the Chinese orbit. Nothing can save the Hindu and Buddhist world except the strongest action to save that area from the frightened Nehru. It is a question not of the independence of India, but whether that country is part of the Communist Chinese world or the democratic Christian West.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

Two Symbols

PARIS

Two men whose names very few Americans had ever heard of a few months ago are now, at least as symbols, the most important political figures in France. Premier Joseph Laniel may well be a symbol of the past, and Pierre Mendes-France a symbol of the future.

Joseph Laniel is a big, heavy-set, rather paunchy man, with a slightly incongruous college-style crew haircut. He is less articulate than most French politicians, but perhaps for this very reason he is the kind of man you feel instinctively is honest clear through. He has had a most honorable record, before, during, and since the war. A wealthy industrialist himself, he heads the most conservative government in France since the liberation. He is the archetype of the patriotic, moderate-minded conservative.

He has an admirable program for putting France back on her feet again. On the foreign front, the heart of this program is the Laniel-Navarre plan, already described in this space, for ending the Indo-Chinese war. On the domestic front, Laniel's aim has been to bring order out of France's financial chaos by the most stringent economy measures.

The problem as Laniel sees it, is to restore French self confidence, both in Indo-China and at the home. Once this is done, he reasons, the French Parliament will be willing to take the great risks inherent in ratifying the European army pact.

So much for the Laniel theory. Alas the wide gap between theory and practice was immediately demonstrated when the underpaid French government workers responded to Laniel's first very mild economy measures by crippling nation-wide strikes. The gap is likely to grow wider if and when Laniel tries to send troop reinforcements to Indo-China, an essential part of the Laniel-Navarre plan. Most observers now believe that the Laniel government will fall not long after Parliament convenes. The Laniel-Navarre plan and the Laniel domestic program will collapse, presumably, at the same time. What then?

Sooner or later the answer is likely to be a government headed by Pierre Mendes-France. Mendes-France, who missed the premiership this summer by a handful of votes and who is widely regarded as the man of the future in French politics, is a figure who should interest Americans. A short, stocky man with great drive and intelligence, he also boasts an honorable war and post-war record. He is neither a nationalist, Marxist, nor a professional America-baiter. He is, or conceives himself to be, a sort of French New Dealer (indeed) he is presently wracking his brains to discover a sufficiently striking

French phrase for the words "New Deal."

It is his central political asset that Mendes-France stands for something new—Laniel is a new face too, but he is surrounded by the old political faces of which the French have become thoroughly tired. Mendes-France has interesting ideas for a French internal new deal, which is certainly long overdue. But it is his proposed new deal abroad which should interest Americans — and scare the daylight out of them.

"Other Means" Slightly Vague

Too briefly, the Mendes-France position comes to this. France will be sick as long as the enfeebling drain of the Indo-Chinese war continues. A sick France cannot play her essential role in the Atlantic Community, in which Mendes-France strongly believes. The Indo-Chinese war cannot be won by military means. Therefore a way must be found to end the war by other means.

At this point, Mendes-France and his increasingly numerous supporters become a trifle vague. But this is the sort of "other means" they have in mind.

France would offer the Indo-Chinese Communist leader Ho Chi Minh unconditional independence for Indo-China, coupled with a precise program for the staged withdrawal of French troops. For his part, Ho Chi Minh would be asked to accept "free, internationally supervised elections," and to offer guarantees that there would be no reprisals against anti-Communist Indo-Chinese.

This is a formula for handing over Indo-China to the Communists with the least possible loss of face. Supporters of Mendes-France tacitly recognize this when they talk hopefully about Ho Chi Minh's dislike of the Chinese, and his supposed Nationalist and Titoist tendencies.

Yet the fact is that the French (for understandable reasons of their own) simply have no stomach any more for the endless Indo-China war. It will be folly for the American policymakers to fail to recognize this fact.

It is still possible, of course, that something like the Laniel-Navarre plan will restore French self-confidence and the will to win in Indo-China. But it is on the balance a good deal more probable that a government dedicated to liquidating the Indo-Chinese war at almost any cost will one day soon come to power here.

It is the American official view that the loss of Indo-China cannot be tolerated, for the compelling reasons recently outlined by President Eisenhower himself. But it is also the American official view that direct American participation in the Indo-Chinese war must be ruled out, also for compelling reasons. It begins to seem likely that the deadly internal contradiction between these two official views may soon be demonstrated.

Small Stuff

By most government standards, the new Small Business Administration is a peanut operation. William D. Mitchell, the new administrator, will have only $55,000,000 in the till when he starts actual operations, although at the outset Congress had contemplated setting him up in business with $275,000,000 to lend to small worthy customers. But it doesn't seem to matter much to Mitchell.

As he sees it, the intent of the act setting up his agency is a far cry from the purposes behind the old Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The relatively small amount available to him, as he explained at his initial press conference, will be used to trigger a loan philosophy under which communities and private investors will be attracted to the aid of small business.

Mitchell hopes to be able to get together a pool amounting to approximately $500,000,000 for new small business or for a helping hand to already established small businesses. He wants to get small private enterprises in the habit of looking elsewhere than the government for help.

Mitchell's explanation of the "new way" included a case history. He told about the Maine Development Credit Corporation, which is a state-wide, locally managed, non-governmental lending corporation. In addition to encouraging loans to help going businesses, the Maine corporation has succeeded in attracting more than 25 new industries "down East." Mitchell said he would like to spend some time trying to get similar schemes under way in other states.

"The accent, it is clear, is definitely on 'self help,' rather than government help."

Gardener's Delight

This is the time of year when many a garden resembles one vast, waving stretch of pampas. This reflects the changing times. In a former era a weedy garden was a sure sign of shiftlessness and was a worse social stigma than being posted at the club for nonpayment of dues.

But look what it says in a news item. In an experiment in Missouri, agricultural specialists allowed a crop of corn to get well started then let the weeds have their way. Weeds being weeds, they prospered. Although if they had known they were being purposely used they probably wouldn't have grown at all.

Anyhow, the weeds were left as a cover crop, which checked winter erosion, and were plowed under next spring with salubrious results. The broad conclusion the experimenters appear to draw is that weeds can be used if they are properly controlled. In the case of small crop plants, the big weeds must be controlled. A quick onceover with a small sickle bar several times a summer will do the trick—unless there's too much rain.

Like many another innovation, this has more than one side. Making weeds work for him is a challenge to the gentleman gardener with the questing mind. It's also a boon to the lazy gent. Gardeners know, in their own minds, in which category they fall. But no one can prove it.

Keeping Trees Friendly

It was Joyce Kilmer who gave expression to the universal love of trees in his little poem which ends on the note that "only God can make a tree." Henry Van Dyke, who spent much time amid the cloistering trees of Princeton, went a step further in saying that "He that planteth a tree is the servant of God."

It remained for the tree warden of Greenwich, Conn., to make a distinction between trees that are friends of man and those which are not — between trees that are planted in populated areas and those which grow up as "weeds." Many who read the views of this town official must have recalled the old poem "Woodman, Spare That Tree!" For he has declared war on "weed trees" that grow up by themselves and often cause difficulties for urban communities by interfering with electric power lines.

Urban residents who enjoy tree-lined streets with grateful summer shade would protest any attack upon these sheltering friends. Yet numbers of these trees have been uprooted by nature itself in severe storms and have sagged across wires and cut off the current that is so essential to man's comfort, even existence.

Greenwich's warden thinks that in city areas, man could save himself a lot of trouble by doing away with such trees as poplars, willows, tulip trees, catalpas, apple, horse chestnut and certain elms. These he calls messy, unmanageable, brittle or sickly.

There may be disagreement with his general indictment, but he suggests that by using approved types of trees whose growth can be controlled and whose limbs can be trained so as not to interfere with power lines, conditions may be produced in which trees and wires can "live together in peace."

Some Day, Perhaps

Some day the American public will go on the war path as a result of being regarded as an "easy mark." When that time comes there will be a stampede of leeches for the border because it will be too hot in the United States for them. But right now they are enjoying a harvest.

The stage is set for their get-the-money gouges. They organize a do-good movement perhaps to provide drinking fountains for giraffes in parched Africa or a clinic for the relief of stubbed toes in a high, rocky country. All they need as equipment is a letterhead containing an imposing list of names.

Their appeals to jar money out of Americans are founded upon sentiment and a challenge to the proverbial charitable inclination. But soon somebody will rediscover that charity begins at home and it will so amaze him that he will begin to practice it and preach it. In time he will make converts, perhaps.

But before he does these United States will be gyped out of some tremendous sums and in many instances the beneficiaries will smirk when they get the money and murmur, "suckers." Unfortunately, some worthy causes will suffer because of the army of leeches growing fat sucking blood money from a gullible America.

Straying Thoughts

It happens annually at almost precisely this point on the calendar. Through the hum of the fan the thought suddenly intrudes—why, it isn't much more than 100 shopping days until Christmas!

What is responsible for this annual aberration, if that is what it is, has never been ascertained. Wishful thinking, no doubt. A desire for relief from the heat.

Not that it is especially important! But Christmas is drawing nearer at that.

How To Keep Well

Eat The Same But Less

Physicians agree that obesity is a serious disease and that overeating is responsible for 95 per cent of all cases. But the members of the medical profession are not unanimous on why overweight individuals have the appetite to eat so well. Physicians who believe that the origin is psychological advise their corpulent patients to counteract anxiety, insecurity, and mother-in-law trouble along with a low caloric diet. At the other extreme are the more sympathetic medics who claim reducing is a matter of will power and they either shame or scare these men and women into consuming less food.

In my opinion, the cause of obesity varies from person to person. At the moment, psychological factors are stressed but this explanation has many drawbacks. After all, most of us are bothered by some emotional problem. Feelings of insecurity, self-pity, and frustration are common and in my own experience lead more often to loss of appetite. It is easy to understand how an ungainly figure can precipitate or aggravate such attitudes.

If the source is not psychological, what makes people overeat? Many come from or marry into a family where eating is stressed; the plates are heaped high and criticism follows when every bit is not consumed. As more and more weight is gained, the accumulated fat must be fed so that any attempt to curtail the menus leaves the person hungry. Others put on weight during the inactivity associated with convalescence from an illness or fail to get back into shape after pregnancy.

As a rule, however, most "fat-ties" get that way by degrees. It becomes a habit to eat a little more of this or that and a gain of 1/2 pound every month or so is not disturbing. By the end of the year they are 5 or 6 pounds heavier and the next year, 10, and the next, 15. Suddenly they are shocked to realize their suit or girdle size is in the heavyweight class; the process has been so gradual they hardly noticed it or they may have blamed it on middle aged spread.

This gradual weight gain means one thing; the individual is eating or drinking just a little more than he needs. The "little more" usually is sugar, fat, or alcohol. This is in keeping with government statistics which show that the average American family is consuming more of these items than did their forefathers. The remedy does not require a fancy diet, food supplements, 4 mile hikes daily, rowing machines, or appetite reducers. The best bet is to eat the same but less. Another plan is to cut down on the "little" pound increasers such as the extra spoonful of sugar in every cup of coffee, the fat on meat, gravy on potatoes, and rich dressings on salad. By eliminating these extras, many individuals are able to keep in trim. The same can be said of cocktails which contain many more calories than the bread and potatoes so often passed up by the overweight. Modifications along this line are not difficult and require less will power than attempting to follow an entirely new diet that is foreign to the would be reducer.

INCOMPLETE DEVELOPMENT

Mrs. W. writes: If a child is born with the right arm missing below the elbow, does this mean there was not enough room for the baby to develop normally?

REPLY

This condition usually results from a defect in development and not a lack of elbow room.

FOOD AND ENERGY

Mrs. I. writes: What foods are best to give energy?

REPLY

All foods produce energy but some (carbohydrates) are absorbed faster, giving quicker delivery. For sustained power, proteins are excellent.

DIABETES AND VISION

T. Y. writes: Can anything be done about vision after diabetes has affected the retina?

REPLY

Yes. If the patient cooperates in caring for his diabetes, the retinal condition will not progress.

HEREDITARY BALDNESS

W. H. writes: Has anything been found to prevent baldness? At 23 my hair line is receding continuously but I'd like to save what I have if possible. My father went bald early and most of his brothers are bald.

REPLY

One of the best dissertations on hereditary baldness was written by one of the best known dermatologists in the country and his final conclusion was that nothing could be done about it. He took a personal as well as a scientific interest in the subject because he was almost as bald as a billiard ball and, like yourself, he started losing hair at an early age.

ENJOY YOURSELF

S. A. writes: Can a person who recently had a cataract removed watch television safely?

Armed Services Still Waste Millions In Duplicate Buying; GSA's Forbes Fumbles Job Of Streamlining Purchases

WASHINGTON—Ever since the Army and Navy allegedly were unified, efficiency experts have been trying to eliminate the greatest waste in government — duplicate buying by the armed services. The three services waste millions bidding against each other for common-use items and this was one of the things unification was supposed to abolish.

Yet, after four years of talk and tons of paper work, agreement has been reached on the standardization of only five items — toilet paper, two types of soap, and two types of paper towels. This leaves 299,995 common-use items regarding which the armed services still bid against each other.

One bottleneck has been Russell Forbes, No. 2 man of the General Services Administration, which buys for most government agencies. Ironically it was Forbes who drafted the unified purchasing plan in the first place but now seems to be unable to carry out his own plan. Forbes was finally given nothing else to do except arrange for the General Services Administration to take over the purchasing, stocking, and distributing of every-day items used by the armed services. Yet except for toilet paper, soap, and paper towels, he has accomplished little more than hold meetings and write letters.

As a result of Forbes' slow-motion campaign, the three services are still competing with each other on the open market for such common-use articles as pencils, paper, furniture, light bulbs, carpets, and venetian blinds.

One Million Pencils

For example, the three services spend more than $75 million on stationery and paper alone. Experts claim at least $25 million would be saved if the General Services Administration did the buying for all three. For until the supply systems are unified, the Army, Navy, and Air Force will continue to indulge in the costly luxury of overbuying.

For instance, the Army has a full year's supply of paper towels on hand, while the Navy has millions of pencils stored away. Yet if the Air Force needs towels or pencils, it will go out and buy more of its own instead of drawing from the already overstocked Army and Navy warehouses.

Technically, GSA has already taken over much of the purchasing for the Air Force. However, this still hasn't been combined with the Army and Navy, so little saving has resulted.

Meanwhile, Forbes holds "area of understanding" meetings every week and writes letters at the rate of three a week. Most of his letters are exchanged with the Pentagon's Admiral M. L. Ring and are addressed "Dear Mort."

This column has seen this revealing correspondence and it doesn't inspire confidence in GSA efficiency. "Dear Mort," says Forbes in one letter which gives some indication of his dillydallying, "we discussed the subject generally at an area of understanding meeting. But I believe we reached no conclusion as to whether action should be instituted."

In The Dark

In a rare show of candor, Forbes complained in another letter that he didn't really understand what was happening at the "area of understanding" meetings.

"In this current phase (of the meetings)," he wrote, "I find myself very much in the dark about what we actually decided."

At another point, Forbes' inaction apparently got under the skin of the Pentagon brass and caused Admiral Charles W. Fox, then chief of naval supply, to write a critical memorandum. This caused Forbes to complain to Admiral Ring in a letter dated Aug. 8, 1952. "In this memorandum, Admiral Fox paints me as a politician, a delayer," wrote Forbes indignantly. "In doing so, Admiral Fox has stretched the truth far beyond its elastic limits. As you so well know, I am neither a politician nor a delayer."

Following this outburst, Forbes wrote more letters and held more meetings, but as far as the final results are concerned, they apply only to soap, paper towels, and toilet paper.

Not Good For GM

The entire production policy of the Defense Department may be revamped as a result of a fire at Lavonia, Mich.

The fire occurred in the giant General Motors plant which produces hydromatic transmission drives for such GM cars as Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Cadillac; also such non-GM cars as Nash, Kaiser, Lincoln. Unfortunately, GM had concentrated all its hydromatic production in this one plant, and as a result few GM cars can be equipped with hydromatics until after the first of the year. Oldsmobile and Cadillac will have to use Buick's dynaflo while Pontiac will use Chevrolet power drive — at a cost of a good many million dollars extra at GM.

While Charles Wilson, senior vice president of General Motors, is concerned with the lesson being drawn from the Lavonia fire, for the "single source" operation conducted by GM at Lavonia is exactly what Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson has been preaching at the Pentagon.

Containing that what's good for General Motors is good for the United States, Wilson not only has been preaching it, but he has put in force a new policy of concentrating production only in the bigger, more efficient factories.

While this will probably save the taxpayer money, many military men feel that it also jeopardizes the safety of the nation. For one factory in time of war can be put out of commission with a single A-bomb, just as General Motors hydromatics were knocked out of production at Lavonia.

The Chinese Army

In terms of manpower, Communist China has produced a fighting army of 4,000,000 men, a part of which, at least, is modernly armed. This army has managed to defeat 17 nations including the United States and Great Britain, in the Korean War.

While it is true that such experts as General Douglas MacArthur, Matthew Ridgway, James Van Fleet and Mark Clark have stated publicly that they could have defeated this army but for political intervention, the fact is that they did not defeat it. Mao Tze-tung, in the eyes of the Asiatics, can claim the credit that he is the first Oriental since 1905, when Japan defeated Russia, who held a coalition of Westerners at bay. This single historic assertion makes Soviet China the leading power in the Asiatic world, particularly as it happens to be true.

Politically, Soviet China has made tremendous strides. It has, with the assistance of Soviet Russia, managed to separate Great Britain from the United States on a basic issue, namely, the Asiatic program. More significantly, for the first time in the history of the United States, Canada, under the leadership of Lester B. Pearson, who in his younger years was influenced by the Institute of Pacific Relations, is not standing with the United States.

Furthermore, Mao Tze-tung has so scared Nehru of India that he has practically reduced him to an agent of Chinese policy in the Western world. Nehru cannot altogether be blamed for being frightened. He sees no force that is free to save Burma, Indo-China and Thailand from conquest by Soviet China.

India could be conquered from these areas and from Tibet, Assam, Nepal and Bhutan unless the United States, assisted by Great Britain, were to occupy India and use it as a base against Soviet China. That alternative, from Nehru's standpoint, would be just as bad.

While these are hypothetical questions to us, to Nehru and India they are important realities. Since the beginning of the Korean War, Nehru has lived in terror that Soviet China would defeat the so-called United Nations forces. With that twist which is so characteristic of Orientals, instead of supporting the United States, Nehru first adopted the position of a neutral, then became a broker for Stalin, and finally passed into an active protagonist of the Communist Chinese. It is a response to desperation.

History is made of such shifts in the relations among nations. From the beginning of the Korean War, this column has been calling attention, sometimes bawling so, to the dangers of permitting Soviet China to win this war and become a world power. While some of our statesmen—most of them—were bogged down in European politics, Russia with historic precedence devoted itself to Asia.

Russia's reasoning was that no matter what happened in Europe, geography, manpower and natural resources made the East of Asia the center of the earth in the second half of the 20th Century. It accepted as inevitable that China would ultimately explode into motion. Russia's objective was to keep China moving southward; otherwise such a force as has been let loose there would encroach upon Russian territories. Every aid was given to Mao Tze-tung to achieve this objective.

This movement began in 1919, I witnessed its early stages from 1919 to 1931 intimately. I was associated with the Student Movement in China in 1919 which was its first shock effort. I knew personally and closely most of the Chinese and many of the Russians involved in the earliest stages of this revolution. Since 1919, I have written probably millions of words about it but the West rejected an accurate picture because it preferred a romantic one.

The explosive force of Chinese imperialism is now in full motion. For the first time since the Emperor Chien Lung (1736-95), China is now expanding to every part of Asia into which the Chinese cultural influence has ever spread, but this will never satisfy Mao Tze-tung who will seek to incorporate into the Chinese orbit all the lands of East Asia, including India.

Today, India must be regarded as already within the Chinese orbit. Nothing can save the Hindu and Buddhist world except the strongest action to save that area from the frightened Nehru. It is a question not of the independence of India, but whether that country is part of the Communist Chinese world or the democratic Christian West.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

Two Symbols

PARIS

Two men whose names very few Americans had ever heard of a few months ago are now, at least as symbols, the most important political figures in France. Premier Joseph Laniel may well be a symbol of the past, and Pierre Mendes-France a symbol of the future.

Joseph Laniel is a big, heavy-set, rather paunchy man, with a slightly incongruous college-style crew haircut. He is less articulate than most French politicians, but perhaps for this very reason he is the kind of man you feel instinctively is honest clear through. He has had a most honorable record, before, during, and since the war. A wealthy industrialist himself, he heads the most conservative government in France since the liberation. He is the archetype of the patriotic, moderate-minded conservative.

He has an admirable program for putting France back on her feet again. On the foreign front, the heart of this program is the Laniel-Navarre plan, already described in this space, for ending the Indo-Chinese war. On the domestic front, Laniel's aim has been to bring order out of France's financial chaos by the most stringent economy measures.

The problem as Laniel sees it, is to restore French self confidence, both in Indo-China and at home. Once this is done, he reasons, the French Parliament will be willing to take the great risks inherent in ratifying the European army pact.

Expect Government To Fall

So much for the Laniel theory. Alas the wide gap between theory and practice was immediately demonstrated when the underpaid French government workers responded to Laniel's first very mild economy measures by crippling nationwide strikes. The gap is likely to grow wider if and when Laniel tries to send troop reinforcements to Indo-China, an essential part of the Laniel-Navarre plan. Most observers now believe that the Laniel government will fall not long after Parliament reconvenes. The Laniel-Navarre plan and the Laniel domestic program will collapse, presumably, at the same time. What then?

Sooner or later the answer is likely to be a government headed by Pierre Mendes-France. Mendes-France, who missed the premiership this summer by a handful of votes and who is widely regarded as the man of the future in French politics, is a figure who should interest Americans. A short, stocky man with great drive and intelligence, he also boasts an honorable war and post-war record. He is neither a neutralist, Marxist, nor a professional America-baiter. He is, or conceives himself to be, a sort of French New Dealer (indeed) he is presently wracking his brains to discover a sufficiently striking

French phrase for the words "New Deal."

It is his central political asset that Mendes-France stands for something new—Laniel is a new face too, but he is surrounded by the old political faces of which the French have become thoroughly tired. Mendes-France has interesting ideas for a French internal new deal, which is certainly long overdue. But it is his proposed new deal abroad which should interest Americans — and scare the daylight out of them.

"Other Means" Slightly Vague

Too briefly, the Mendes-France position comes to this, France will be sick as long as the enfeebling drain of the Indo-Chinese war continues. A sick France cannot play her essential role in the Atlantic Community, in which Mendes-France strongly believes. The Indo-Chinese war cannot be won by military means. Therefore a way must be found to end the war by other means.

At this point, Mendes-France and his increasingly numerous supporters become a trifle vague. But this is the sort of "other means" they have in mind.

France would offer the Indo-Chinese Communist leader Ho Chi Minh unconditional independence for Indo-China, coupled with a precise program for the staged withdrawal of French troops. For his part, Ho Chi Minh would be asked to accept "free, internationally supervised elections," and to offer guarantees that there would be no reprisals against anti-Communist Indo-Chinese.

This is a formula for handing over Indo-China to the Communists with the least possible loss of face. Supporters of Mendes-France tacitly recognize this when they talk hopefully about Ho Chi Minh's dislike of the Chinese, and his supposed Nationalist and Titoist tendencies.

Yet the fact is that the French (for understandable reasons of their own) simply have no stomach any more for the endless Indo-China war. It will be folly for the American policymakers to fail to recognize this fact.

It is still possible, of course, that something like the Laniel-Navarre plan will restore French self-confidence and the will to win in Indo-China. But it is on the balance a good deal more probable that a government dedicated to liquidating the Indo-Chinese war at almost any cost will one day soon come to power here.

It is the American official view that the loss of Indo-China cannot be tolerated, for the compelling reasons recently outlined by President Eisenhower himself. But it is also the American official view that direct American participation in the Indo-Chinese war must be ruled out, also for compelling reasons. It begins to seem likely that the deadly internal contradiction between these two official views may soon be demonstrated.

CAP Bloodlift Program Begins In Keyser Area

KEYSER — The first bloodlift shipment from Washington by air to the Keyser Airport was received Saturday morning.

Two local planes, piloted by Herbert Feller and Richard Deputy of the local air unit, made the round trip to Martinsburg and return in an hour and a half, taking empty containers and returning with two filled shipments of blood.

The blood was received a few minutes before by air from Washington and transferred to the local planes which left immediately.

This will be the customary manner of transporting blood to Keyser in the future with a minimum of time.

Plans have been completed for a regular CAP Bloodlift program from the Washington Regional Blood Center to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W. Va., with a saving of time and expense to the Red Cross, which pays all cost.

The approximate time in transporting new blood to Keyser will be one hour and 30 minutes, making the blood one day fresher in reaching the hospital.

In transporting old blood back to Washington, the saving will be about 16 hours, making a total of about three extra days for the center to redistribute the blood in and around the Washington area before processing.

The plan is that Congressional Squadron, NCW, and Keyser Squadron, W. Va. Wing, each fly, on every delivery date, to Martinsburg, W. Va., and meet, exchange loads, and return to their home bases to complete the mission.

In bad weather, Washington will ship the blood by rail provided it has been notified before 4 p. m. on the day previous to the delivery date.

Drought, Epidemic Cancel Keyser Fishing Rodeo

KEYSER — Extended drought, fear of forest fires and a typhoid fever epidemic have caused the cancellation of the Keyser Area Fishing Rodeo this year.

Plans had been made for the event this year, but conditions have made it inadvisable to carry through, due to the long dry season that resulted in the almost dried up condition of some streams.

In addition, the typhoid fever epidemic is sufficiently serious to be taken into consideration throughout the county.

There also is the fear of forest fires, as bad as those of a year ago due to the dry and arid situation.

Prizes will either be returned or set aside for use at a rodeo next year.

The rodeo was planned by the Mineral County Wild Life League and by Keyser Recreation Board and had been set for next Wednesday.

CAP Bloodlift Program Begins In Keyser Area

KEYSER — The first bloodlift shipment from Washington by air to the Keyser Airport was received Saturday morning.

Two local planes, piloted by Herbert Feller and Richard Deputy of the local air unit, made the round trip to Martinsburg and return in an hour and a half, taking empty containers and returning with two filled shipments of blood.

The blood was received a few minutes before by air from Washington and transferred to the local planes which left immediately. This will be the customary manner of transporting blood to Keyser in the future with a minimum of time.

Plans have been completed for a regular CAP Bloodlift program from the Washington Regional Blood Center to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W. Va., with a saving of time and expense to the Red Cross, which pays all cost.

The approximate time in transporting new blood to Keyser will be one hour and 30 minutes, making the blood one day fresher in reaching the hospital.

In transporting old blood back to Washington, the saving will be about 16 hours, making a total of about three extra days for the center to redistribute the blood in and around the Washington area before processing.

The plan is that Congressional Squadron, NCW, and Keyser Squadron, W. Va. Wing, each fly, on every delivery date, to Martinsburg, W. Va., and meet, exchange loads, and return to their home bases to complete the mission.

In bad weather, Washington will ship the blood by rail provided it has been notified before 4 p. m. on the day previous to the delivery date.

KEYSER — Extended drought, fear of forest fires and a typhoid fever epidemic have caused the cancellation of the Keyser Area Fishing Rodeo this year.

Plans had been made for the event this year, but conditions have made it inadvisable to carry through, due to the long dry season that resulted in the almost dried up condition of some streams.

In addition, the typhoid fever epidemic is sufficiently serious to be taken into consideration throughout the county.

There also is the fear of forest fires, as bad as those of a year ago, due to the dry and arid situation. Prizes will either be returned or set aside for use at a rodeo next year.

The rodeo was planned by the Mineral County Wild Life League and by Keyser Recreation Board and had been set for next Wednesday.

Swanton Leads Mountain Top

Tops Terra Alta, 7-4, Burgess, Shaffer Star

Swanton's Dodgers took over sole possession of first place in the second half race of the Mountain Top Baseball League by defeating Terra Alta yesterday at Terra Alta by the score of 7-4.

The game was highlighted by the slugging of Eddie Burgess who hit for the cycle — a homer, triple, double and single in five trips — and the pitching of Junior Shaffer who yielded only four hits and fanned ten.

Woody Craver pounded three singles and Coghley rapped a double and single for the winners. Watson belted a homer for Terra Alta.

Swanton's record is now four wins and one loss.

Loch Lynn trounced Bittinger to the tune of 14-5. Bob Glaze kept Bittinger's nine hits well spaced and fanned seven.

Old Germans' Led Offended To Game As Westvaco Wins, 4-3

Bobby Raines Racks Up 12th Victory Here

Inskip's Double Wins Game; McCoolle Breaks Demons' String, 7-1

STANDING OF THE TEAMS

Old Germans	23	5
Westvaco	22	6
Frostburg	16	12
Mt. Savage	13	15
McCoolle VFW	8	20
Grantsville	2	26

Bobby Raines prevented Cumberland's Old Germans from clinching the pennant in the Bi-State Baseball League yesterday when he pitched the Westvaco Papermakers to a 4-3 decision over the locals at Penn Avenue Field.

The Westvaco triumph, third in five starts against the Old G's this season, enabled the Tri-Towns aggregation to move within one game of first place in the pennant race which ends on September 6. Westvaco could tie up the race by defeating the Old Germans next Sunday at Westernport. In the final games of the regular season, one week from next Sunday, Frostburg plays at Cumberland and Westvaco invades Mt. Savage.

Inskip's Hit Decides

Trailing 3-1 going into the eighth, Westvaco put the game on ice by chasing three tallies over the platter. Successive doubles by Jim Shockey and Bobby Raines started the uprising. Tommy Donnelly then singled home Raines with the tying marker, "Pepper" Inskip knocked Norman Geatz out of the box with a two-bagger and Donnelly scampered home with what proved to be the deciding tally. "Woody" Woodson replaced Geatz and walked. Mosser forced Ryan at second and Seymour went out on an infield fly to end the inning.

Two errors, a sacrifice in the field out gave the Old Germans a run in the first inning but Westvaco tied it up in the sixth by taking advantage of three fielding miscues. The locals forged to the front in the 7th by scoring twice on two singles, a sacrifice and two-bagger by Ronnie Gage.

Raines Scores 12th Win

Raines posted his 12th victory against two losses. He yielded nine hits, fanned one and gave up two walks. Geatz, the loser gave up six hits in 7 1/2 innings and suffered his second loss against eight wins.

Cleveland Tops San Francisco

Graham, Groza Star In 20 To 7 Victory

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23 (INS)—Veterans Otto Graham and Lou Groza led the Cleveland Browns football team to a 20 to 7 victory over the San Francisco 49ers today before an exhibition game crowd of 36,273 in San Francisco's Kezar Stadium.

Groza booted two long field goals in the second quarter, one for 46 yards and the other for 47. He also kicked two conversions.

In the third quarter, Graham, given better protection than he had received in the first half, got off two touchdown passes of 28 yards each.

The 49ers scored in the second quarter on a 47-yard pass play from Y. A. Tittle to Hugh McElhenny who picked the ball from the arms of a Cleveland defender on the 10 and raced over for the lone San Francisco touchdown.

Gordon Soltau converted.

Philadelphia Scout Pleased With Showing Of Richards, Murray

Earl Hite, scout for the Philadelphia Phillies, gave Tommy Richards, youthful pitching star of the Frostburg Demons the "once over" yesterday as the latter twirled the first two innings against McCoolle's Vets in a Bi-State League game at Keyser.

Hite told officials of the Frostburg Club he was pleased with Richards' performance and also was impressed by the playing of Bill Murray, first sacker of the Demons. The latter rapped three hits in yesterday's game.

Both Richards and Murray are graduates of Beall High School where they starred with Beall's co-champions in the Bi-State Scholastic Conference this year.

Hite indicated that both players who had good grades in high school could be granted college scholarships. He will make his report to the head of the Phils' scouting system.

Rose, Hartwig Take National Doubles Title

Australians Defeat Mulloy And Talbert

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 23 (AP)—Australia's second-string pair of southpaw Mervyn Rose and Rex Hartwig won the men's National Doubles Tennis Championship today with a workmanlike 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 victory over American veterans Gardner Mulloy and Billy Talbert.

The 23-year-old Aussies boosted their stock for the coming Davis Cup tests by adding the aging but agile Mulloy-Talbert duo to their previous triumph over the American tandem of Vic Seixas and Tony Trabert.

Rose won this title in 1952 with Seixas, but he and Hartwig—who made the trip after his hometown folks raised the expense funds—are rated behind the 18-year-old Aussie stars Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewall. The latter were upset here by Straight Clark, Pasadena, Calif., and Hal Barrows, Charlottesville, Va.

Rose was superb as he notched four aces and ran off five love games during the one hour, 17 minute match. He got tonight help from the curly-haired Hartwig who chipped in with three aces and two games at love on his service.

Mulloy and Talbert—winners of this championship in 1942, 1945, 1946 and 1948—just didn't have the extra speed to handle the Aussies.

Today's result left the American Davis Cup Committee with more problems than it had prior to this tournament. The Aussies showed four topnotch performers here in Hoad, Rosewall, Rose and Hartwig.

Cumberland's Loyal Order of Moose softball team of the Rocking Chair League and the Romney Rockets will conclude their three-game series today on the field of the West Virginia School for the Deaf, Romney, at 6:30 p. m., EDT.

The Moose won the opener, 10-8, and Romney copped the second game, 6-5.

Members of the Moose squad will leave the Moose Home at 5:30 o'clock.

Beagles owned by J. B. Harden of Frostburg and Robert Collins of Cumberland were judged the winners in the Puppy Show held in conjunction with the picnic of the Allegany Beagle Club last week at the club grounds on McMullen Highway.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 23 (INS)—In another two weeks Maureen O'Hara and MacDonald Carey will be off for Spain and Tangiers to co-star in "Port Of Africa." By Sept. 20 they will be taking direction from Richard Sale who, with Mary Anita Sale, wrote the story for the Mike Frankovich-Sale Company.

Mac, who is in Westport, Conn., to open "Day Of Grace" Aug. 29, the play which he bought himself, takes time off for "Port Of Africa." He returns to New York to star in his stage play opening on Broadway Nov. 10.

As for Maureen, she plans to take her daughter, Bronwyn, to Ireland before she goes to Spain so the child can visit with her grandmother and go to the same school in Dublin Maureen attended as a child.

Claude Dauphin and Mrs. Louis Jourdan sat next to us at the premiere of "Kismet," so I realized Claude had come back to fulfill his Warner contract. He is here for "The Phantom Ape," which sounds like a 3-D'er if I ever heard one.

Karl Malden is also on the lot for the same thriller. Remember Malden? He won an academy award for "Streetcar Named Desire."

Apparently the Warner freers have done so well with their "House Of Wax" and other 3-D'ers and special mediums that we will be seeing more of them.

"Phantom Ape" is taken from Edgar Allan Poe's gruesome thriller, and is guaranteed to make you jump right out of your skin.

Kay Williams Speckles has always been afraid to be too far away from her children when they were with their father, Adolph Speckels II, sugar heir. That's why she took an apartment a block away from the Speckels' summer home.

It was 6 o'clock in the morning when the children's nurse called Kay to come over quickly and get the children, and it was then that Kay was severely beaten by Speckels with her own slipper.

B&O To Discontinue Four W. Va. Trains

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has received Public Service Commission authority to discontinue four passenger trains in West Virginia.

To be abandoned, effective Sept. 10, are trains Nos. 77 and 78, overnight runs operated one each way daily between Wheeling and Keokuk.

To be discontinued Sept. 15 are the West Virginia portions of Nos. 65 and 66, now operated between Grafton and Connellsville, Pa. Of that 92.5-mile run, 57.4 miles lie in West Virginia.

The B. and O. said it suffered a deficit of $151,159.72 in the period ended Aug. 30, 1951, on runs Nos. 77 and 78. It said the deficit climbed to $205,565.52 for 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1952.

Though the new hats are small and head-bugging, there's more to them than in recent seasons!

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Because the smartest hairdos remain short, there is a "cover-up" look about the smartest hats, a look of depth that closely conforms to the shape of the head. Because the smartest hats are manipulated to accentuate slimmness and narrowness. But there is more to the small hats than there has been in some time. "Important looking" is what they are, providing the fashion impact needed for the new, simple silhouette. And never has there been greater variety in shape, height, width, line and placement to make a flattering selection so easy.

There are impressive, shallow small hats allowing for maximum coiffure display. And there are deep, cover-up hats providing an entirely new look.

There are "brow" hats placed midway down on the forehead, usually with prowl-like front or boat-front effects. But equally new are the hats with back interest which are generally posed well behind the hairline and that fit rather deep on the head.

Turbans are given highly preferred position, fashioned in soft, drapable fabrics such as jersey, satin and velvet. Draped toques, designed to show the hairline at front and sides are highly prophetic styles. Small cloches, often of "long-haired" tweed, furry felts and velours with punched crowns are major styles in the new showings.

Brims that have the new look are shallow and pinched to give them a forward thrust and bring them close to the face. But the large hat still holds its prestige position, as evidenced by Dior's level plateau and large-brimmed beavers and bretons.

This fall, choose a hat that will be something to remember you by — a hat that accentuates the most memorable of your attractive features. Perhaps you have fine, aristocratic features that a hat sitting straight on your head will accentuate. Maybe your profile should be emphasized. If so,

Kay, who is one of the best mothers I know, and who worries

Fortunately her close friends, Dorothy Lamour and Bill Howard are spending the summer in Balboa and telephoned a doctor and kept the children while Kay was rushed to the hospital.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Dan Dailey with Nancy Ann Smith on his arm, gave a dancing exhibition for a full hour at Ciro's. Abe Schiller, of Flamingo Hotel fame, has all but closed a deal with Margaret Truman for a November appearance there.

Mayor Poulson's official movie social bowl will be at the Jack Bennys' party at the Mocambo for Vic Damone Tuesday night. And, by the way, Freddie de Cordova will be Joanie Benny's escort.

Jack Lawrence writes me from Italy that Carlos Thompson may be the rave of the coming year. Jack, who wrote the songs for Lana Turner's "Flesh And The Flame," said that Joe Pasternak is completely sold on Carlos.

The moment Fred MacMurray completes "Caine Mutiny" he's taking his daughter, Susie and his son, Robert on a motor trip.

Peter Crosby has put his ex-wife, Denise Darcel completely out of his mind in favor of a beautiful model by the name of Laura Block. It was bound to happen.

Two books the studios have no interest in buying are Dr. Kinsey's new report and "A House Is Not A Home," the Polly Adler tome.

Major Speed Chandler lunched with Ruth Elder, first of the famous girl flirts. She'll have a role in his picture, "Cavalade Of The Air."

Again Selene Walters, who called her ex, Dr. Alfred Huenegard words I wouldn't dare use, was with him at the Beverly Hills Hotel cocktail lounge. With them were Ginny Simms and Randolph Rouse of Washington, D. C.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Because the smartest hairdos design your hair-do and choose remain short, there is a "cover-up" look about the smartest hats, a look of depth that closely conforms to the shape of the head. Because the smartest hats are manipulated to accentuate slowness and narrowness. But there is more to the small hats than there has been in some time. "Important looking" is what they are, providing the fashion impact needed for the new, simple silhouette. And never has there been greater variety in shape, height, width, line and placement to make a flattering selection so easy.

There are impressive, shallow small hats allowing for maximum coiffure display. And there are deep, cover-up hats providing an entirely new look.

There are "brow" hats placed midway down on the forehead, usually with grow-like front or boat-front effects. But equally new are the hats with back interest which are generally posed well behind the hairline and that fit rather deep on the head.

Turbans are given highly preferred position, fashioned in soft, drapable fabrics such as jersey, satin and velvet. Draped toques, designed to show the hairline at front and sides are highly popular styles. Small cloches, often of "long-haired" tweed, furry felts and velours with punched crowns are major styles in the new showings.

Brims that have the new look are shallow and pinched to give them a forward thrust and bring them close to the face. But the large hat still holds its prestige position, as evidenced by Dior's level plateau and large-brimmed beavers and bretons.

This fall, choose a hat that will be something to remember you by—a hat that accentuates the most memorable of your attractive features. Perhaps you have fine, aristocratic features that a hat sitting straight on your head will accentuate. Maybe your profile should be emphasized. If so,

Terrible Predicament

CANNES
I'm in the most terrible predicament. I'm stranded on the Riviera by a French national strike which has interrupted everything in France except pleasure. How to get home, I keep asking myself?

I was asking myself that question just the other day while lying in the sun at Cap d'Antibes. The Mediterranean is a extraordinarily blue at Antibes, like a huge aquamarine, and, if you are afflicted

John Crosby by conscience as I am, its very blueness, the enchanting beauty of Eden Rock, just adds to your discomfort. I should be home working, I kept telling myself.

I shouldn't be lying here in the sun staring at a bewitching bronzed, almost naked blonde striking attitudes on the diving board. The women here all drape themselves carefully in poses as if waiting at any moment for the cameras to click. You forgive them this affectation because they are among the most beautiful women anywhere. Eden Rock attracts beauties from all over the world—Australia, Egypt, the funniest places—and the concentration of feminine beauty, most of it in bikinis, almost overpowers you. Hedy Lamarr was here the other day and, brother, in this league she doesn't measure up.

Last night at the casino I was seated next to Princess Ibrahim. All who, a certain maitre d'hotel assures me, is the most beautiful woman in the world. The maitre will have to be nameless because if he ever gave such a public accolade to any one girl, the other beauties would scratch his eyes out.

But that's getting away from my problem which is how to get out of here. It's a problem that haunts me all the time, while driving to Monte Carlo for instance, twisting through the mountains high over the blue, blue sea, a route that must be among the most breathtaking in Christendom. It's a problem I keep turning over in my mind while sitting on the terrace at the Hotel Carlton, sipping a drink and watching the sun sink slowly into the mountains or while dancing under the stars at the casino or while watching the Duchess of Windsor lose a packet at chemin de fer.

Trapped, I say to myself bitterly. Trapped like a mink. It wouldn't be appropriate in these surroundings to say that I was trapped like a rat. Much more like a mink or maybe a sable. A strike is a terrible thing.

Besides keeping me away from my work, this strike is making me miss a lot of things back in New York. Now let's see, what am I missing, exactly? A lot of television shows, for one thing. For a whole week now I've been deprived of "Love of Life," a soap opera in which I'm keenly interested. I have no idea what's going on on "Love of Life" these days. No, don't bother to write and tell me. You see there is no mail.

No mail, no telegrams, no long distance telephone service. Come to think of it, the office couldn't get in touch with me now short sending a posse down here to get me. And I don't think the posse could get here or, if it could, that it could get out. Train and plane service are pretty well disrupted and everyone wants to get on the few planes that leave Nice, though why they should want to do that, I can't imagine.

So effectively has the strike cut off Cannes that there's nothing here at all except for the four S's—sun, sea, sand and sin. It's an intolerable situation but I shall try to bear up. The Crosbys are noted for their fortitude under adversity and I shall let them down even under these trying circumstances.

I'm off now to do a little sailing at St. Tropez. I'll probably hate every minute of it.

Terrible Predicament

CANNES
I'm in the most terrible predicament. I'm stranded on the Riviera by a French national strike which has interrupted everything in France except pleasure. How to get home, I keep asking myself.
I was asking myself that question just the other day while lying in the sun at Cap d'Antibes. The Mediterranean is extraordinarily blue at Antibes, like a huge aquamarine, and, if you are afflicted by conscience as I am, its very blueness, the enchanting beauty of Eden Rock, just adds to your discomfort. I should be home working, I kept telling myself.

I shouldn't be lying here in the sun staring at a bewitching bronzed, almost naked blonde, striking attitudes on the diving board. The women here all drape themselves carefully in poses as if waiting at any moment for the cameras to click. You forgive them this affectation because they are among the most beautiful women anywhere. Eden Rock attracts beauties from all over the world—Australia, Egypt, the funniest places—and the concentration of feminine beauty, most of it in bikini, almost overpowers you. I, like Lamarr was here the other day and, brother, in this league she doesn't measure up.

Last night at the casino I was seated next to Princess Ibrahim. All who, a certain maitre d'hôtel assures me, is the most beautiful woman in the world. The maitre will have to be nameless because if he ever gave such a public accolade to any one girl, the other beauties would scratch his eyes out.

But that's getting away from my problem which is how to get out of here. It's a problem that haunts me all the time, while driving to Monte Carlo for instance, twisting through the mountains high over the blue, blue sea, a route that must be among the most breathtaking in Christendom. It's a problem I keep turning over in my mind while sitting on the terrace at the Hotel Carlton, sipping a drink and watching the sun sink slowly into the mountains or while dancing under the stars at the casino or while watching the Duchess of Windsor lose a packet at chemin de fer.

Trapped, I say to myself bitterly. Trapped like a mink. It wouldn't be appropriate in these surroundings to say that I was trapped like a rat. Much more like a mink or maybe a sable. A strike is a terrible thing.

Besides keeping me away from my work, this strike is making me miss a lot of things back in New York. Now let's see, what am I missing, exactly? A lot of television shows, for one thing. For a whole week now I've been deprived of "Love of Life," a soap opera in which I'm keenly interested. I have no idea what's going on on "Love of Life" these days. No, don't bother to write and tell me. You see there is no mail.

No mail, no telegrams, no long distance telephone service. Come to think of it, the office couldn't get in touch with me now short sending a posse down here to get me. And I don't think the posse could get here or, if it could, that it could get out. Train and plane service are pretty well disrupted and everyone wants to get on the few planes that leave Nice, though why they should want to do that, I can't imagine.

I'm off now to do a little sailing at St. Tropez. I'll probably have every minute of it.

The cigar store Indian is vanishing from cigar stores in the United States. In 1900 there were 100,000 cigar store Indians, but there are only 3,000 today.

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

SERVES AS A WARNING
MANY a keen player, if he makes a suit bid after his partner had opened the bidding and the intervening opponent had doubled, has a number of logical ideas in mind. One, of course, is to impede the double's partner and make it a bit difficult for him to show his preferred suit. Another is to slip in a bid of his own distribution when he conveniently can, with the idea that it might find his own side possessing a suit fit. More important, however, his bid serves as a warning that he has practically no defensive values in his hand. This can result in keeping his partner from making a later business double of the opponents unless he can beat their contract in his own hand. Or it may guide his partner in making a point-saving sacrifice bid.

warned by his partner's call, he knew he could count on no worthwhile help from North. Despite his well-located K, he did not feel that he could take four tricks by himself, though he might come pretty close to it.
He said also that, with North having bid as high as 4-Diamonds, he considered his own refraining from either 5-Diamonds or a business double of the heart game to be practically a forcing pass, more or less requesting North to double if perchance he felt he might take about one trick against the hearts, to sacrifice at 5-Diamonds if holding a hand completely worthless on defense, and to pass if in doubt. North did just as he hoped, with such a worthless defensive holding, by sacrificing.
It turned out as reckoned. The 5-Diamonds doubled went down three tricks, for 500 points, less than the value of the vulnerable game East could have made in hearts.

South said after this deal that, if North had not injected his diamond bid over West's double, he himself would have doubled the 4-Hearts of his opponents. But,

If East had bid spades and hearts, what simple principle should guide the defense against South's 3-No Trumps?

streak came to an end yesterday at
Keyser where Manager Bill See's McCoolle Vets jumped on four of the Demons' pitchers for eleven hits and won to the tune of 7-1.

Tommy Richards, who worked the first two innings, was charged with the loss. Lefty Lou Hite, Bob Lookabaugh and John Frank followed him to the mound.

Meanwhile, Vance Shears, although nicked for a dozen hits, was the baselines. Frostburg scored its long run in the seventh frame.

Richards and Bill Murray headed the Demons at the plate with three hits each while Jim Gaffney collected a pair. Cain, McKenzie

Webster Outlines School Calendar For Teachers

Registration To Start Sept. 1

All of the nearly 600 principals and teachers in the Allegany County public school system this week-end were mailed copies of a letter from Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster in which he announced the school calendar for 1953-54 and informed the instructors of certain rules which will govern their operations.

Webster noted that 1953-54 activity will begin Tuesday and Wednesday, September 1 and 2, with the registration of new pupils between 9 a. m. and noon in all schools.

At 9:30 a. m. September 3 there will be a conference of elementary principals in the Board of Education Building. High school principals will have their conference at 1:30 p. m. September 3 at the same place.

Then, at 9:30 a. m. September 4, each principal will meet with his faculty.

School officials get underway with a half-day session from 9 a. m. until noon Tuesday, September 8. Another half-day program is scheduled for September 9. The first full session will be on September 10.

The first holiday will take place October 15 and 16 when teachers will be in Baltimore attending the Maryland Teachers Association meeting. The Thanksgiving holiday will start at 1 p. m. November 25, and school will resume at 9 a. m. November 30. Christmas vacation starts at 3:30 p. m. December 22 and all schools will reopen at 9 a. m. January 4. The first semester ends January 29 and the second opens February 1. The Easter vacation will commence at 1 p. m. April 15 and schools will reopen at 9 a. m. April 21. The school term ends June 11. The schedule calls for 92 school days in each semester.

In his letter, the superintendent stresses that a child who is six years of age on or before December 31, 1953, is eligible to be admitted in school. No exception can be made to this regulation, he adds. State law also requires that every child must be successfully vaccinated or have a certificate from a doctor indicating immunity from smallpox.

Webster's letter also points out that health certificates are required from all teachers and janitors. These must be sent to the administration office not later than September 30. All new teachers also are reminded that they must file a federal withholding exemption certificate. Teachers who have earned summer school credits this year should send their college report to the administration office for recording and filing not later than Friday, September 18.

Mt. Savage POW Released By Communists

Cpl. James Patrick Dickel, 23-year-old son of William and Mary (Brown) Dickel, Mt. Savage, was among Korean POW's released by the Communists early yesterday morning.

Cpl. Dickel was captured by the Reds July 24, 1950, one day before his 21st birthday.

The Mt. Savage soldier enlisted in the armed forces at the age of 17 years and has not been home since that time. Relatives said Cpl. Dickel did not come home on leave after training, but was sent to the west coast and shipped for overseas duty.

Dickel's parents never heard from him, and only learned of his whereabouts from the Defense Department shortly after his capture in the summer of 1950.

Friends in Mt. Savage said the only letter Mr. and Mrs. Dickel received from their son was in April of this year, and it was written in a prison camp somewhere in North Korea.

The happy parents and a brother went to Somerset, Pa. yesterday to tell Dickel's grandmother the good news of his release. They could not be reached last night for comment.

Cpl. Dickel attended St. Patrick's School in Mt. Savage, and Mt. Savage Junior High School. He has a brother, Robert S. Dickel, who is a World War II veteran with service in the European Theatre.

Veterans organizations in Mt. Savage are planning a homecoming celebration for the returning POW. Plans are underway for "Dickel Day" to honor the area soldier.

Frostburg's assistant police chief, Ronald L. Kreider, was hospitalized here yesterday after he fell down a flight of steps at his home.

Kreider, 50, suffered a compound fracture of the right arm and a hip injury when he tumbled down the stairs at his Uhl Street home at about 4 a. m. yesterday.

Police said Kreider had just awakened and made a misstep in the darkened house. He was taken to Miners Hospital, but was sent on to Memorial Hospital in Cumberland for further treatment.

The local hospital said last night Kreider was resting "fairly comfortably." Kreider has been on the Frostburg force since 1933.

Colorful Creole State Is Library's Latest Feature

By ALBERT D. DARBY

Louisiana — the state with a heritage from both France and Spain — is currently featured in the historical display at the Cumberland Free Public Library because it became the 18th star in the American flag with its admission to the union in 1812.

Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, has compiled a wide variety of data concerning Louisiana.

Founded In 1714
The first permanent settlement, Natchitoches, was founded in 1714 by Louis de Saint Denis. Four years later New Orleans was established by Captain Bienville and named in honor of the Duke of Orleans, then regent of France. New Orleans became the capital of Louisiana in 1722.

In 1719, a Scotchman named John Law, who had won a big financial position in France, was given trading and colonization rights in the Louisiana territory. The "Company of Indies" which he organized to develop Louisiana's resources failed and his unsuccessful scheme has gone down in history as the "Mississippi Bubble." After the "Bubble" collapsed Louisiana again came under the direct rule of the French crown.

Bought By Jefferson
France transferred most of Louisiana to Spain in 1762. The French colonists revolted against Spanish rule in 1768 and temporarily were successful. Spain relinquished control of Louisiana to France in 1800 and in 1803 by the Louisiana Purchase the United States gained title to the area just 150 years ago. For a mere $15,000,000, Thomas Jefferson's administration added the territory which now includes the present states of Montana, Wyoming, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Louisiana.

The War of 1812 began in the year when Louisiana was admitted to the union. In 1815, American forces led by Andrew Jackson defeated the British under Admiral Cockburn in the Battle of New Orleans.

Louisiana seceded from the union January 26, 1861 and became an independent republic. On March 21 of the same year she joined the Confederate States of America. Three years after the War between the States, Louisiana was readmitted to the union.

The population of Louisiana is more varied than most other states. Once the home of many Indian tribes, the population still includes about 2,000 Indians. The original settlers were French. Then Spanish settlers arrived during the Spanish rule. An important French group of pioneers were the Acadians exiled from Nova Scotia by the English in 1765. Longfellow immortalized their story in the poem "Evangeline." The Acadians' descendants now are called "Cajuns." Louisiana's population totals 2,638,516 to place it 21st in rank. With 48,523 square miles it is 30th in area among the American states.

Louisiana is called the "Creole State" because descendants of the early French and Spanish settlers are called Creoles.

The French influence is still much felt in Louisiana, where that language is still spoken in many sections. Present civil law of Louisiana is based largely upon the French system, the Code Napoleon. The units of local government, there are 64 of them, are called parishes instead of counties, a holdover from the Spanish regime. The Mississippi River and its tributaries drain the state and give Louisiana a fertile soil. It ranks first in growing of rice and sugar cane and also is a leader in cotton production. Louisiana waters are rich in shrimp and terrapin and its forests make the state fifth in the country in value of wood products. It leads the world in the muskrat pelt industry, ranks fourth in petroleum production and has valuable salt mines.

Baton Rouge is the state capital and home of Louisiana State University but New Orleans is the state's leading city. One of the important seaports in the United States, New Orleans is the 16th city in the United States with 570,445 inhabitants. It is famous for its beautiful French Quarter and the fabulous Mardi Gras which precedes the Lenten season each year.

The "Creole State" has many fine educational institutions. Soon after New Orleans was founded the Capuchin fathers who had come as missionaries began to teach. In 1727 the Ursuline Sisters

Two Adults Hurt In Freak Auto Mishap

Two persons were hospitalized here yesterday afternoon following a freak automobile accident near Frostburg.

In Sacred Heart Hospital are Mrs. Dora Feather, 35, of 24 South Broadway, Baltimore, and Aldine Livengood, 78, of Cuzart, W. Va. Mrs. Feather's husband, Sam, told hospital authorities he was driving east on U. S. Route 40 at about 5:30 p. m. when Livengood, who was riding in the Feather car, accidentally opened a door and tumbled out.

Mrs. Feather received brush burns of the right shoulder and arm when her husband stopped the car suddenly. Livengood had a scalp laceration and complained of pains in his back. Both he and Mrs. Feather were admitted for observation and X-rays. Feather was unhurt.

In another accident, Mrs. Margaret Pierson, 83-year-old resident of Hyndman, Pa., sustained a hip injury when she fell at her home. Mrs. Pierson's husband, Matthew, said his wife fell as she arose from a chair. She was admitted for observation and X-rays.

Talks Slated To Forestall Phone Strike

Further negotiations are scheduled in Baltimore today to forestall a threatened strike of Maryland telephone operators.

Federal mediators, who entered the contract dispute between the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. and the Independent Telephone Union of Maryland Saturday, will also attend this afternoon's session.

The company has a morning session scheduled with the CIO Communications Workers of America, representing employees of the firm other than operators.

Both unions are seeking new contracts to replace those already expired, and officials of both have been authorized to call strikes if negotiations fail.

Operators are working under a contract extension which expires Tuesday midnight. Their union president, Mrs. Margaret Weiss, said it was "quite possible" a strike would begin Wednesday if agreement on wages and other matters was not reached.

Representatives of the CIO group have not made any announcement concerning a strike other than to say members authorized one.

Arrives In States

Cpl. Carol J. Biller, Route 5, arrived in Seattle Saturday from the Far East aboard the USNS Buckner.

Cumberland Fair To Open Today; Parade Tonight

Reynolds Predicts Record Turnout

Edgar H. Reynolds, serving his first year as full-time general manager, predicted over the week-end that the 36th annual Cumberland Fair which opens at Fairgo today and runs all this week should be the best agricultural exposition in the long series and should attract a record number of Tri-State residents.

Reynolds pinch hit as general manager a year ago when Harry Flook, then serving in the capacity, fell and was injured only 15 days before the 1952 fair began.

Among improvements made at Fairgo in the past several weeks was the planting of new evergreens around the exhibit hall. Both the exhibit hall and the poultry house have been repainted and the grandstand has been decorated with flags and bunting.

Firemen's Day

Today is volunteer firemen's day at the fair, and highlight of the opening day program is a parade, scheduled for 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. on the Fair Grounds.

Reynolds said all exhibit space under the grandstand and in the exhibit halls and livestock department is filled.

Flower show entries can be accepted up to noon today by Miss Ruth A. Clauson, assistant superintendent of the show. Judging will begin at 1 p. m.

Prizes will be awarded in more than 50 classifications of flowers, ranging from asters to zinnias, and in four classes of flower arrangement.

Judges will be Mrs. Frank P. Hughes and Mrs. Charles Van Ormer, both of Bedford, Pa., and William Welsh, Cumberland. Entry blanks may be obtained at Ren Roy Flower Shop and Reynolds Tobacco Store, Cumberland, and at Phillips Florist, Lonaconing.

Eight Prizes Offered

Judge G. Wenrich of Cresapton, chairman of the Firemen's Night committee, said eight prizes will be awarded to fire companies and auxiliary units participating in tonight's parade.

The company making the best appearance will receive $25, with $15 for second prize. The company with the largest number of uniformed men marching will be awarded $25, with $15 as second. First and second prizes of $25 and $15 will be given for the companies making the best appearance with apparatus, and $15 prizes will be given the ladies auxiliary with most in line, and the best-appearing auxiliary.

Cromwell C. Zembower of LaVale will be chief marshal of the 35-unit parade, assisted by Wenrich, W. E. Lawyer of Bedford Road Company; Arthur Winters of Cresapton, and Harry Wilson, Baltimore Pike. Judges will be Cumberland Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker, Orphans Court Judge J. French VanMeter, Harry K. Poling and Harry Skelly.

Most of the parade space will be taken up by fire companies and auxiliaries from Hyndman, Pa., Corriganville, Wiley Ford, W. Va., Deer Park, Fort Ashby and Ridgeley, W. Va., Frostburg, LaVale, Bowling Green, Friendsville, Cresapton, Barton, McCoolle Westernport, North Branch, Midland, Lonaconing, Bedford Road, Baltimore Pike, Ellerslie, Mt. Savage and Chapel Hill of Cumberland.

Also in the line of march will be the American Legion Drum Corps of Meyersdale, Pa., Ridgeley Majorettes, the Berlin, Pa. Fire and Drum Corps, Frostburg's Arion Band, the Friendsville Drum Corps, Barton Citizens Band, drum and bugle corps of Henry Hart Post 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Cumberland, and the Lonaconing City Band.

Rotary To Meet

Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, will be guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Rotary Club tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA. He will talk on the finances of Cumberland.

Bicycle, Tools Stolen

William Boggs, 515 North Mechanic Street, notified police Saturday that a girl's bicycle, tool box and lugs were taken from his garage.

Farm Queen

Today's Sermonette

They were all filled with the Holy Ghost. Acts 2:4.

Today's sermonette is a digest of the sermon preached yesterday at the Church of the Nazarene, Frostburg, by the pastor, Rev. Joseph D. Byers. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Pentecost In Personal Experience

BY REV. JOSEPH D. BYERS

The Feast of Pentecost was one of the great national feasts of the Jewish nation. Three times a year all males were required to appear before God:

before God: at the Feasts of Passover, Pentecost, and Tabernacles. The Passover was kept as a memorial of their deliverance out of Egypt. Pentecost, also called Feast of Weeks, of Harvest, was kept of the 50th day after Passover, lasting one day. It commemorated the giving of the law at Mount Sinai. Hence the gathering of devout men out of every nation under heaven. The words of the text provide the divisions of the sermon:

I, THEY. "They were all filled." Who were the recipients of this glorious experience? The 120 faithful followers of Jesus which are recorded in Verses 13, 14 and 15 of Chapter one. Since they all received the same experience we may judge the spiritual status of all by what we know about the disciples. We know they enjoyed a definite spiritual relationship with

Jesus before this event. This can be proven from various portions of Scripture. This is pictured by Jesus' analogy of the vine and the branches in John 15:5. "I am the vine, ye are the branches." They belonged to Jesus in a manner in which no other people of that day belonged to Him. Notice in John 17, 9, 10, 14: "I pray for them; I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine." "And all mine are thine, and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them." "I have given them thy word; and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." So we see that they had a clear-cut, sky-blue state of regeneration, and a clean cut from the world. Jesus also stated their acceptance with God in Luke 10:20 in speaking to the disciples. He said, "Your names are written in Heaven." The disciples anticipated the fulfillment of Christ's promises in which they were loyal and obedient to Christ and His commands. They tarried in Jerusalem. They were united in purpose and desire. No divisions or the displaying of carnality were seen in that upper room.

II. ALL. "They were all filled with the Holy Ghost." It was a group experience. A great spiritual organism — the church of Christ — was brought into existence that day. The sound of the rushing, mighty wind was a symbol of the breathing of divine life into this body of believers — the body of Christ; for these individual believers were fused into one body. An analogy is seen in the creation of Adam; first the physical formed out of the dust, perhaps having some form of physical life, but not man. God breathed into him the breath of life; then he became a living soul. Here the Church became "the body of Christ" by the coming of the Holy Ghost. The Holy Spirit came into the "holy of holies" of His Church, as symbolized by "the tongues of fire." An analogy is seen in the coming of the Shekinah glory, a pillar of fire, to the holy of holies of the Old Tabernacle. Here the Holy Spirit comes into His temple, the church. Again it was an individual experience. Each was filled because they were the first to enter into this great Pentecostal fullness of the Spirit in its purity, its power, its glory as a second definite crisis in the lives of the disciples. Each person was transformed by this fullness.

III. FILLED. "They were all filled with the Holy Ghost." Filled with the Holy Spirit to the exclusion of all foreign elements. Their carnal selfishness and divisions were gone because their hearts were purified by the incoming of

City Asks Study Of Public Health Financing Here

Double Taxation Issue Is Raised

The Mayor and Council will arrange a meeting with state and county officials soon to discuss the financing of public health in Cumberland.

Plans for the meeting were made last Friday during a discussion on the budget to be allowed for the City Health Department.

The Health Department was allotted $37,000 in the levy which will be passed by the Mayor and Council today, up $2,400 from last year's expenditures.

The chief factors in the increased appropriations were wage increases granted to workers to bring rates up to that paid under the state wage scale, and the payment of one third of the salary of a technician whose job was about to be abolished due to a cut in State Health Department funds.

Double Taxation Charged

Other items chargeable to public health here are the city's $1,980 share of the cost of the Cooperative Laboratory, $900 for Clinic, $2,200 for humane work and $2,300 for mosquito control.

The problem was pointed out by Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, who termed the present system "double taxation" since Cumberland is part of Allegany County and pays for its health services through county taxes.

Finance Commissioner William V. Keegan said flatly that the county should provide the service.

Gibson reiterated that health is a county program and that there is no reason for Cumberland taxpayers to pay one and one-half times for the services.

Suggests Conference

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, suggested that the City Health Board might want to study the problem.

Officials inferred that the local situation is somewhat unique in Maryland and Gibson pointed out that Hagerstown, with which Cumberland is often compared, pays $15,000 for health in its budget, with the rest of the program carried by the county.

The Health Department budget has been rising for the past two years. The program cost $34,468.40 last year, $30,866.02 in 1951 and $28,687.20 in 1950.

County Gives $34,555

Officials also pointed out that Cumberland maintains its own humane officer but gets no returns from dog licenses sold by the county.

The Allegany County Health Department is jointly sponsored and financed by the State Board of Health, Allegany County and the City of Cumberland.

The County Commissioners provided $34,555.28 in its current levy for the Board of Health. About $33,000 was spent by the county last year for health services.

Auto Accident Victim Critical

Five-year-old Kathleen Confer, of Ardara, Pa., remained in critical condition last night in Bedford County Memorial Hospital where she was admitted following an auto mishap Saturday morning.

The young girl suffered a compound fracture of the skull when the car in which she was riding with her parents and brother overturned on the Pennsylvania Turnpike near the Bedford interchange.

State Police reported the car owned by James and Mary Confer was traveling east on the highway and was being driven by Mrs. Confer.

Police said at about 3 a. m. Saturday Mrs. Confer apparently lost control of the auto and it overturned several times, stopping in the westbound lane.

Reported in satisfactory condition at the hospital are Mrs. Confer who suffered a fractured arm and possible fractured skull and scalp lacerations, and her husband who sustained a lacerated scalp and possible fractured skull.

Reported in fair condition was their three-year-old son, Samuel, who suffered a possible fractured skull, brain concussion and scalp lacerations.

Kreider, 50, suffered a compound fracture of the right arm and a hip injury when he tumbled down the stairs at his Uhl Street home at about 4 a. m. yesterday.

Police said Kreider had just awakened and made a misstep in the darkened house. He was taken to Miners Hospital, but was sent on to Memorial Hospital in Cumberland for further treatment.

The local hospital said last night Kreider was resting "fairly comfortably." Kreider has been on the Frostburg force since 1933.

Webster Outlines School Calendar For Teachers

Registration To Start Sept. 1

All of the nearly 600 principals and teachers in the Allegany County public school system this week-end were mailed copies of a letter from Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster in which he announced the school calendar for 1953-54 and informed the instructors of certain rules which will govern their operations.

Webster noted that 1953-54 activity will begin Tuesday and Wednesday, September 1 and 2, with the registration of new pupils between 9 a. m. and noon in all schools.

At 9:30 a. m. September 3 there will be a conference of elementary principals in the Board of Education Building. High school principals will have their conference at 1:30 p. m. September 3 at the same place.

Then, at 9:30 a. m. September 4, each principal will meet with his faculty.

School officially gets underway with a half-day session from 9 a. m. until noon Tuesday, September 8. Another half-day program is scheduled for September 9. The first full session will be on September 10.

The first holiday will take place October 15 and 16 when teachers will be in Baltimore attending the Maryland Teachers Association meeting. The Thanksgiving holiday will start at 1 p. m. November 25 and school will resume at 9 a. m. November 30. Christmas vacation starts at 3:30 p. m. December 22 and all schools will reopen at 9 a. m. January 4. The first semester ends January 29 and the second opens February 1. The Easter vacation will commence at 1 p. m. April 15 and schools will reopen at 9 a. m. April 21. The school term ends June 11. The schedule calls for 92 school days in each semester.

In his letter, the superintendent stresses that a child who is six years of age or before December 31, 1953, is eligible to be admitted in school. No exception can be made to this regulation, he adds. State law also requires that every child must be successfully vaccinated or have a certificate from a doctor indicating immunity from smallpox.

Webster's letter also points out that health certificates are required from all teachers and janitors. These must be sent to the administration office not later than September 30. All new teachers also are reminded that they must file a federal withholding exemption certificate. Teachers who have earned summer school credits this year should send their college report to the administration office for recording and filing not later than Friday, September 18.

Mt. Savage POW Released By Communists

Cpl. James Patrick Dickel, 23-year-old son of William and Mary (Brown) Dickel, Mt. Savage, was among Korean POW's released by the Communists early yesterday morning.

Cpl. Dickel was captured by the Reds July 24, 1950, one day before his 21st birthday.

The Mt. Savage soldier enlisted in the armed forces at the age of 17 years and has not been home since that time. Relatives said Cpl. Dickel did not come home on leave after training, but was sent to the west coast and shipped for overseas duty.

Dickel's parents never heard from him, and only learned of his whereabouts from the Defense Department shortly after his capture in the summer of 1950.

Friends in Mt. Savage said the only letter Mr. and Mrs. Dickel received from their son was in April of this year, and it was written in a prison camp somewhere in North Korea.

The happy parents and a brother went to Somerset, Pa. yesterday to tell Dickel's grandmother the good news of his release. They could not be reached last night for comment.

Cpl. Dickel attended St. Patrick's School in Mt. Savage, and Mt. Savage Junior High School. He has a brother, Robert S. Dickel, who is a World War II veteran with service in the European Theatre.

Veterans organizations in Mt. Savage are planning a homecoming celebration for the returning POW. Plans are underway for "Dickel Day" to honor the area soldier.

Colorful Creole State Is Library's Latest Feature

By ALBERT D. DABBY

Louisiana — the state with a heritage from both France and Spain — is currently featured in the historical display at the Cumberland Free Public Library because it became the 18th star in the American flag with its admission to the union in 1812.

Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, has compiled a wide variety of data concerning Louisiana.

Founded In 1714

The first permanent settlement, Natchitoches, was founded in 1714 by Louis de Saint Denis. Four years later New Orleans was established by Captain Bienville and named in honor of the Duke of Orleans, then regent of France. New Orleans became the capital of Louisiana in 1722.

In 1719, a Scotchman named John Law, who had won a big financial position in France, was given trading and colonization rights in the Louisiana territory. The "Company of Indies" which he organized to develop Louisiana's resources failed and his unsuccessful scheme has gone down in history as the "Mississippi Bubble." After the "Bubble" collapsed Louisiana again came under the direct rule of the French crown.

Bought By Jefferson

France transferred most of Louisiana to Spain in 1762. The French colonists revolted against Spanish rule in 1768 and temporarily were successful. Spain relinquished control of Louisiana to France in 1800 and in 1803 by the Louisiana Purchase the United States gained title to the area just 150 years ago. For a mere $15,000,000, Thomas Jefferson's administration added the territory which now includes the present states of Montana, Wyoming, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Louisiana.

The War of 1812 began in the year when Louisiana was admitted to the union. In 1815, American forces led by Andrew Jackson defeated the British under Admiral Cockburn in the Battle of New Orleans.

Louisiana seceded from the union January 26, 1861 and became an independent republic. On March 21 of the same year she joined the Confederate States of America. Three years after the War between the States, Louisiana was readmitted to the union.

The population of Louisiana is more varied than most other states. Once the home of many Indian tribes, the population still includes about 2,000 Indians. The original settlers were French. Then Spanish settlers arrived during the Spanish rule. An important French group of pioneers were the Acadians exiled from Nova Scotia by the English in 1765. Longfellow immortalized their story in the poem "Evangeline." The Acadians' descendants now are called "Cajuns." Louisiana's population totals 2,638,516 to place it 21st in rank. With 48,523 square miles it is 30th in area among the American states.

Louisiana is called the "Creole State" because descendants of the early French and Spanish settlers are called Creoles.

The French influence is still much felt in Louisiana, where that language is still spoken in many sections. Present civil law of Louisiana is based largely upon the French system, the Code Napoleon. The units of local government, there are 64 of them, are called parishes instead of counties, a holdover from the Spanish regime. The Mississippi River and its tributaries drain the state and give Louisiana a fertile soil. It ranks first in growing of rice and sugar cane and also is a leader in cotton production. Louisiana waters are rich in shrimp and terrapin and its forests make the state fifth in the country in value of wood products. It leads the world in the muskrat pelt industry, ranks fourth in petroleum production and has valuable salt mines.

Baton Rouge is the state capital and home of Louisiana State University but New Orleans is the state's leading city. One of the important seaports in the United States, New Orleans is the 16th city in the United States with 370,445 inhabitants. It is famous for its beautiful French Quarter and the fabulous Mardi Gras which precedes the Lenten season each year.

The "Creole State" has many fine educational institutions. Soon after New Orleans was founded the Capuchin fathers who had come as missionaries began to teach. In 1727 the Ursuline Sisters

Two Adults Hurt In Freak Auto Mishap

Two persons were hospitalized here yesterday afternoon following a freak automobile accident near Frostburg.

In Sacred Heart Hospital are Mrs. Dora Feather, 35, of 24 South Broadway, Baltimore, and Aldine Livengood, 78, of Cuzzart, W. Va. Mrs. Feather's husband, Sam, told hospital authorities he was driving east on U. S. Route 40 at about 5:30 p. m. when Livengood, who was riding in the Feather car, accidentally opened a door and tumbled out.

Mrs. Feather received brush burns of the right shoulder and arm when her husband stopped the car suddenly. Livengood had a scalp laceration and complained of pains in his back. Both he and Mrs. Feather were admitted for observation and X-rays. Feather was unhurt.

In another accident, Mrs. Margaret Pierson, 83-year-old resident of Hyndman, Pa., sustained a hip injury when she fell at her home. Mrs. Pierson's husband, Matthew, said his wife fell as she arose from a chair. She was admitted for observation and X-rays.

Talks Slated To Forestall Phone Strike

Further negotiations are scheduled in Baltimore today to forestall a threatened strike of Maryland telephone operators.

Federal mediators, who entered the contract dispute between the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. and the Independent Telephone Union of Maryland Saturday, will also attend this afternoon's session.

The company has a morning session scheduled with the CIO Communications Workers of America, representing employees of the firm other than operators.

Both unions are seeking new contracts to replace those already expired, and officials of both have been authorized to call strikes if negotiations fail.

Operators are working under a contract extension which expires Tuesday midnight. Their union president, Mrs. Margaret Weiss, said it was "quite possible" a strike would begin Wednesday if agreement on wages and other matters was not reached.

Representatives of the CIO group have not made any announcement concerning a strike other than to say members authorized one.

Cumberland Fair To Open Today; Parade Tonight

Reynolds Predicts Record Turnout

Edgar H. Reynolds, serving his first year as full-time general manager, predicted over the weekend that the 36th annual Cumberland Fair which opens at Fairgo today and runs all this week should be the best agricultural exposition in the long series and should attract a record number of Tri-State residents.

Reynolds pinch hit as general manager a year ago when Harry Flook, then serving in the capacity, fell and was injured only 15 days before the 1952 fair began.

Among improvements made at Fairgo in the past several weeks was the planting of new evergreens around the exhibit hall. Both the exhibit hall and the poultry house have been repainted and the grandstand has been decorated with flags and bunting.

Firemen's Day

Today is volunteer firemen's day at the fair, and highlight of the opening day program is a parade, scheduled for 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. on the Fair Grounds.

Reynolds said all exhibit space under the grandstand and in the exhibit halls and livestock department is filled.

Flower show entries can be accepted up to noon today by Miss Ruth A. Clauson, assistant superintendent of the show. Judging will begin at 1 p. m.

Prizes will be awarded in more than 50 classifications of flowers, ranging from asters to zinnias, and in four classes of flower arrangement.

Judges will be Mrs. Frank P. Hughes and Mrs. Charles Van Ormer, both of Bedford, Pa., and William Welsh, Cumberland. Entry blanks may be obtained at Ren Roy Flower Shop and Reynolds Tobacco Store, Cumberland, and at Phillips Florist, Lonaconing.

Eight Prizes Offered

Judge G. Wenrich of Cresaptown, chairman of the Firemen's Night committee, said eight prizes will be awarded to fire companies and auxiliary units participating in tonight's parade.

The company making the best appearance will receive $25, with $15 for second prize. The company with the largest number of uniformed men marching will be awarded $25, with $15 as second. First and second prizes of $25 and $15 will be given for the companies making the best appearance with apparatus, and $15 prizes will be given the ladies auxiliary with most in line, and the best-appearing auxiliary.

Cromwell C. Zembovich of LaVale will be chief marshal of the 35-unit parade, assisted by Wendell W. E. Lawver of Bedford Road Company; Arthur Winters of Cresaptown, and Harry Wilson, Baltimore Pike. Judges will be Cumberland Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker, Orphans Court Judge J. French VanMeter, Harry K. Poling and Harry Skelly.

Most of the parade space will be taken up by fire companies and auxiliaries from Hyndman, Pa., Corriangville, Wiley Ford, W. Va., Deer Park, Fort Ashby and Ridgeley, W. Va., Frostburg, LaVale, Bowling Green, Friendsville, Cresaptown, Barton, McCoolle Westernport, North Branch, Midland, Lonaconing, Bedford Road, Baltimore Pike, Ellerslie, Mt. Savage and Chapel Hill of Cumberland.

Pentecost In Personal Experience

BY REV. JOSEPH D. BYERS

The Feast of Pentecost was one of the great national feasts of the Jewish nation. Three times a year all males were required to appear before God:

before God: at the Feasts of Passover, Pentecost, and Tabernacles. The Passover was kept as a memorial of their deliverance out of Egypt. Pentecost, also called Feast of Weeks, of Harvest, was kept of the 50th day after Passover, lasting one day. It commemorated the giving of the law at Mount Sinai. Hence the gathering of devout men out of every nation under heaven. The words of the text provide the divisions of the sermon:

I. THEY. "They were all filled." Who were the recipients of this glorious experience? The 120 faithful followers of Jesus which are recorded in verses 13, 14 and 15 of Chapter one. Since they all received the same experience we may judge the spiritual status of all by what we know about the disciples. We know they enjoyed a definite spiritual relationship with Jesus before this event. This can be proven from various portions of Scripture. This is pictured by Jesus' analogy of the vine and the branches in John 15:5: "I am the vine, ye are the branches." They belonged to Jesus in a manner in which no other people of that day belonged to Him. Notice in John 17, 9, 10, 14: "I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine." "And all mine are thine, and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them." "I have given them thy word; and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." So we see that they had a clear-cut, sky-blue state of regeneration, and a clean cut from the world. Jesus also stated their acceptance with God in Luke 10:20 in speaking to the disciples. He said, "Your names are written in Heaven." The disciples anticipated the fulfillment of Christ's promises in which they were loyal and obedient to Christ and His commands.
